Mansfield Keeps It Up--Huge Crowd on Hand for Army Send-Off

At left is a general view of part of the crowd of 5,000 which thronged the downtown section at the send-off demonstration staged this morning for a group of selectees departing for an army induction center. At right are three brothers, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Augustine of 95 West Sixth street, who are headed for army service this week. From left to right are James, 24, and Joe, 28, who left in this morning's contingent, and at right is Anthony, 31, who will leave with another contingent at the end of this week. James and Joe resided at the family home, and Anthony, who is married, lives at 280 North Main street.

Heavy Fighting Still On; Reds Say They Hold

Opening Phase of Hitler Offensive 50 Miles From Strait That Shields Caucasus Oil; Germans Assert 40,000 Prisoners Taken.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(INS)—After three days of fierce fighting, Soviet forces today claimed they had held their positions on the Kerch peninsula and said that more than a German division has been wiped out in the latest clash on the central front. Foreign reports of the strength of the German attack in the Kerch area seem exaggerated, official quarters said.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's field headquarters asserted today that the critical five-day-old "battle to break through on the Isthmus of Kerch" in the Crimea, gateway to the Caucasus oil treasures, had been "decided" with the annihilation of Russians encircled there and the capture of 40,000 prisoners.

Dispatches indicated that after breaching Soviet lines at the entrance to Kerch peninsula, the Germans still had nearly 50 miles to go to reach Kerch City, just across the narrow Kerch strait from the Caucasus.

The battle, regarded as a test phase of Hitler's long-heralded spring offensive, started last Friday along a 12-mile front on the peninsula.

While the Germans claimed a smashing victory, a Soviet mid-day communique reported "no substantial changes" overnight.

This would indicate that neither side had scored any major gains.

In a special communique, the German high command declared: "The battle of the break-through on the Isthmus of Kerch has been decided. It concluded with the annihilation of the enemy forces which have been overrun and encircled there.

"Pursuit of the beaten remainder of the enemy is being continued in the direction of Kerch."

The Nazi communique said that in addition to the 40,000 Soviet prisoners—nearly three divisions—the Russians had lost 197 tanks, 598 guns, 260 warplanes and "countless other war material."

DNB, the German news agency, asserted that Nazi troops were thrusting "far beyond the Parpatsch positions," on the neck of the Kerch peninsula, and declared:

"Resistance of the first Soviet defense line has been broken by artillery fire. Infantry is being thrown into the attack."

Latest Moscow dispatches said only that powerful Axis and Soviet armies fought on across the narrow Crimean panhandle, with the Germans throwing masses of cavalry, tanks, planes and troops against the Russian defenders.

"During May 12 on the Kerch peninsula, severe battles took place with the enemy," a Soviet communique said.

A Vichy (French) broadcast said the Germans, supported by Rumanian troops, opened the offensive by landing behind Red army lines on the Gulf of Feodosiya Friday night.

By late yesterday, the broad-

Rescuers Reach Mine Victims; Toll Hits 54

33 Bodies Found as Workers Tunnel Way Through Debris Following Explosion; 21 Discovered Earlier.

(By United Press)

MORGANTOWN, W. Va.—Rescue crews today reached the bodies of 33 men in the Christopher Coal company mine No. 3, raising to 54 the death toll of an explosion which ripped through the mine late yesterday.

The finding of the bodies confirmed fears of mine officials and rescue workers that none of the men near the scene of the blast had escaped alive, although rescue crews had tunneled desperately through the debris-filled workings in the faint hope that some had survived.

Previously, the bodies of the 21 others had been reached.

While relatives and friends of the victims, and several thousand curious looked on, the work of bringing the bodies to the surface was started.

The victims were found several miles inside the mine, in sections one and one and one-half, where the explosion occurred at the change of shifts yesterday. The remainder of the 123-man day shift escaped.

The mine, a drift working, is situated at Osage, five miles from here.

Believed caused by a "gas pocket," the blast ripped through two sections of the mine with devastating force, bringing down tons of rock, coal and dirt to form a barricade behind which the victims were trapped.

Those not killed by the blast were believed to have suffocated before rescuers could reach them. The dayshift men who escaped were far enough from the scene to dash to safety.

The work of removing the bodies progressed slowly. At mid-morning, a total of 13 had been removed as workmen went from room to room in the devastated area, digging out the victims.

Apparently struck down as they

$50 Pay for Buck Privates? Maybe, But Not Just Yet

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Advice to buck privates and apprentice seamen—don't bank too much on that $50 a month the house has tentatively approved for you.

The pay increase may go through, and a raise to at least $42 seems certain. But that boost to $50 still has to be thrashed out in the senate and then in a senate-house conference committee.

Final house action on the bill to raise the pay of all enlisted men and the allowances of most officers is due today. Yesterday it tentatively approved in committee of the whole an amendment by Rep. John E. Rankin, (D., Miss.), raising the base pay of privates to $50 a month, and the base pay of apprentice seamen the same.

The original bill approved by the house military affairs committee called for raises to $42, the same rate already approved by the senate.

DROPS RATIONS

British Government Bows To Protests Over Fuel Cut.

LONDON —(INS)— The British government, bowing to a storm of criticism, today decided to postpone its projected fuel rationing plan.

Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal, told the house of commons that after the war cabinet reconsidered the fuel rationing proposals, including recommendations to overhaul the coal industry, the plan would be submitted to the house after the Whitsun recess.

The government's original scheme had been persistently criticized, particularly by conservative members. The concensus of opinion was that rationing was unnecessary if the coal industry underwent a change to increase its output.

PROBING CAUSE OF FATAL CRASH

Army Seeking Clue to Accident That Killed Five Fliers.

EVERETT, Wash.—(INS)—Army investigators today hunted in the tangled wreckage of a twin-motored army bomber for a clue to the cause of the crash that killed five members when the plane plunged to earth and burned about a mile west of Paine field.

The field's public relations office reported the plane was on a routine flight but withheld further details.

Killed in the crash were: Second Lieut. Bailey B. Smalling, Altus, Okla.; Second Lieut. John P. Lynch, Carlinville, Ill.; Second Lieut. William H. Robinson, jr., Coral Gables, Fla.; Second Lieut. Howard F. Porter, Indiana, Pa.; Corp. John L. Zurcher, Everett.

U. S. SHIP SUNK

Medium-Sized Vessel Torpedoed Off Coast of Africa.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The navy announced today that a medium-sized U. S. merchant vessel has been torpedoed and sunk off the west coast of Africa and that survivors have been landed at an eastern U. S. port.

PLANT IDLE IN 'WORK HOLIDAY'

Humphryes Employes Protest Failure of War Conversion; Company Issues Denial.

Approximately 200 employes of the Humphryes Manufacturing company staged a "work stoppage" today in what officials of the workers' union described as a protest against the company's failure to convert its facilities to war production. All operations at the firm were halted.

Humphryes officials countered immediately with a denial of the union charges, contending that the company "has been engaged entirely in the manufacture of enameled iron plumbing fixtures for defense housing."

The 24-hour "work stoppage" was called at midnight Tuesday by the Amalgamated Local No. 756, United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America.

Fred Simpson, president of Local No. 756, said a telegram was sent to the company officials at 10 p. m., Tuesday, warning them of the scheduled "work holiday."

Copies of the telegram also were sent to Donald Nelson, head of the War Production board, and John R. Steelman of the U. S.

BOMB 2 MORE RESTAURANTS

French Continue Demonstrations Against Nazis In Paris.

BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—Two more restaurants used by the Germans in Paris have been bombed, advices from the occupied French capital said today.

Dispatches yesterday reported a series of bombings of Paris hotels used as barracks by the Germans, apparently a crescendo of anti-German demonstrations covering the past ten days.

It was suggested that these were inspired by the appointment of Major General Oberg, one of the right hand men of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, as head of police in the Paris area.

City Gives Draftees New Rousing Send-Off

Another Crowd of 5,000 Turns Out to Give Contingent of Selectees Cheery Farewell as Buses Leave.

One more time, Mansfield did itself proud today as it staged a send-off full of good cheer for a delegation of its sons leaving for army service.

Today's demonstration, in which some 5,000 persons participated, proved convincingly that the city at large is just as enthusiastic about the send-off custom as when the practice was originated on March 24.

Today's send-off was the seventh since that date, when the Richland Victory Civic Committee decided to try it as an experiment. About 5,000 attended that time, too, and that has been the average for each subsequent send-off except for two when the contingents were unusually small. On each of those two occasions, more than 1,500 attended.

Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the committee, expressed elation at the way the city responded to his appeal for a large turn-out this morning.

The contingent this morning, made up entirely of selectees from Drabt Board 1, filled four buses which drew up in Park avenue west at 8 a. m. Traffic on the street between Walnut and Mulberry streets was re-routed from 7:30 on until the buses drew away at 8:20.

Music was provided by the Mansfield Senior high school band.

Many of today's delegation were married men, previously classified as 3-A. The draft

GOING OFF AIR?

Broadcasters Hear Half U. S. Stations Face Closing.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Possible shortage of radio equipment led to the belief today at the National Association of Broadcasters' convention that the federal communications commission may order off the air half of the 800 radio stations in the United States.

Fear that this possibility may become a reality tossed the convention into a turmoil as it was revealed that W. J. Scripps, head of WWJ, Detroit, met with 100 representatives of lower-powered network affiliates to discuss means of preventing elimination of all radio outlets except the powerful clear channels.

TAX RECEIPTS DROP

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Sales tax receipts for the week ending May 2 totaled $1,183,710, a drop of $296,048 from revenues in a similar period last year, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported today.

BOOSTS TOTAL OF WAR DEAD

Army Lists 107 More Americans Killed In Philippines.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The war department today listed 107 additional American soldiers killed in action or who died of wounds in the Philippines, bringing to 3,502 the total army-navy-marine corps known deaths in World War No. 2.

Twenty-three officers and 84 enlisted men comprised the department's latest list of those who died while heroically defending the Philippines against an overwhelming Japanese invasion force. The next of kin has been notified in each case, the department said.

HOLD-UP ADDED TO CRIME WAVE

Shoe Store Proprietor Robbed of $95; Vandals Break Store Windows Over Night.

A daylight hold-up yesterday afternoon at a shoe store on North Main street and widespread vandalism last night in the northwest section of the city spurred Mansfield police today in their search for what they believe is an organized ring of thieves and bandits operating in the city area.

A lone bandit obtained $95 and a gold watch yesterday afternoon when he entered Al's Kicks shoe store at 114 North Main street, forced the proprietor, Albert Schwein, and a clerk, W. F. Speiser, into a back room, took $70 from the cash register and robbed Speiser of his watch and $20.

Schwein and Speiser told police the bandit was about 35 years old, five feet, eight inches tall, and weighed about 140 pounds. He threatened them with a blue revolver after asking to look at a pair of shoes, Schwein said.

The bandit ran out the front door and headed north on Main

Mansfield Days Arrive With Big Bargains Friday

"Shop in Mansfield—save gasoline—save tires."

This slogan was announced today for Mansfield Days, the annual trade event to be conducted Friday and Saturday of this week under the sponsorship of the Retail Merchants' association, by the committee of the organization arranging details of the event.

Fifty retailers will participate in this annual offering of special merchandise values.

Shoppers will have the opportunity to ride downtown free on the regular buses of the Mansfield Rapid Transit system between the hours of 9 a. m. and 11:15 a. m. The regular fare will be charged for the return trip.

Participating firms will display yellow and black banners and signs on their windows, as well as a Retail Merchants' association flag in front of their stores.

The Thursday edition of The News-Journal will carry advertisements listing the special values to be offered at the event Friday and Saturday.

PAY RESPECTS

Friends Honor Body of M'Namee Before Columbus Burial.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Friends of Graham McNamee paid their last respects today to the pioneer radio announcer whose body rested in a Columbus funeral home before burial in Calvary cemetery this afternoon.

McNamee died last Saturday in New York of a streptococcus infection. Although born in Washington and reared in St. Paul, Minn., the body was brought to Columbus, where a number of relatives reside, for burial.

Thousands More In County to Get Manpower Questionnaires

Thousands of Richland county men who signed up in the first two selective service registrations and have not been called for military service will receive their occupational questionnaires within the next two weeks, it was announced today.

The questionnaires, when filled out and returned to the draft boards, will help the government decide who is necessary to war industries and who can be shifted from domestic to war jobs.

The blanks are filled out in duplicate with one copy going to the U. S. Employment office in Mansfield. Another section will be sent to the Bureau of Census in Washington for use by the population division.

Richland county boards mailed the occupational questionnaires Monday to the men who registered in the third sign-up last February.

Clerks of boards in Mansfield said they would start mailing the second batch of blanks within a few days. Board 3 was nearly out of blanks and must obtain a new supply before many more can be mailed.

Local boards also were informed today by state draft headquarters that Canadian citizens residing in the United States will have the choice of joining the Canadian armed forces or being inducted here, under a reciprocal agreement.

MASSING: Jap Fleet Gathers For New South Pacific Thrust

(By United Press)

MELBOURNE—A Japanese invasion fleet is reassembling at island bases northeast of Australia, awaiting heavy naval reinforcements for a new offensive thrust, dispatches from Allied advanced bases indicated today.

Warships and transports were reported at these bases. The main striking force had been scattered by the American-Australian naval victory in the Coral sea but it was believed to be virtually intact, insofar as key units went. It was apparently only awaiting reinforcements to strike a new blow which many believed would give Australia and the United States and Allied forces their supreme test.

Activities of Japanese ships, reported by American and Australian reconnaissance planes, and of the Japanese air force based at Rabaul in the Bismarck islands and Lae on the north New Guinea coast, indicated that enemy reinforcements were arriving steadily.

For the first time since the battle of the Coral sea started May 4, bad weather interrupted the offensive activity of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's air force yesterday.

However, it was understood that limited reconnaissance work was continued and the United Nations command and the United States south Pacific naval command would receive the usual reports of enemy warship, trans-

CARRIERS: Sub Attack Spurs Plans for 'Mother' Dirigibles

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—As Axis submarines stalked their prey within sight of American shores, penetrating even into the St. Lawrence river, the attention of congress was drawn today to the possibility of building huge plane-carrying dirigibles that could seek them out and destroy them far and wide.

A first step toward authorizing the construction of great aerial battlewagons, as large as or larger than the ill-fated German airship Hindenburg, was taken by the house naval committee yesterday when it struck a "non-rigid" limitation from a bill providing for 24 more blimps to augment the coastal patrol.

The bill, already passed by the senate, was approved unanimously by the house committee.

Rep. Maas of Minnesota, the committee's ranking Republican member, declared the navy's hands should be freed to construct rigid as well as the non-rigid type, for patrol work outside the range of a blimp.

Captain Charles E. Rosendahl, in charge of navy blimps, told the committee that the "rigids would fit into the picture."

"I think a big airship, serving as an airplane carrier, could be very valuable," he declared. Later, he said that a large airship could carry 10 to 12 planes, releasing them for bombing attacks when an enemy vessel was sighted.

"Of course," he acknowledged, "such an airship could be shot down or bombed."

"So can a battleship," injected a committee member.

Navy blimps, scouting the inshore shipping lanes in co-operation with planes and small, speedy surface craft, have proved particularly effective because they

NAZIS CLAIM VICTORY IN KERCH ATTACK

Heavy Fighting Still Rages as Germans Claim 40,000 Soviets Captured.

cast said, the Axis invaders had knifed across the Kerch bottleneck and reached the village of Ojuspete, on the Gulf of Arabat, 50 miles west of Kerch City.

The Gulf of Arabat is a needle-like inlet from the Sea of Azov, running along the east coast of the Crimea.

If accounts were true, this action apparently cut off Soviet forces farther west, splitting the Soviet armies in a familiar example of Nazi tactics.

The Germans previously had declared that the Russians were numerically superior and that fresh Red army divisions were massed at the rear of "a strong and deep defense system" behind a wide anti-tank trench.

According to this description, the Russians still had considerable strength waiting to meet the German onslaught toward Kerch City itself, which the Russians recaptured in a surprise landing during a raging snowstorm last Dec. 30.

Soviet dispatches pictured the battle as developing amid furious air attacks on both sides, with low-flying Russian anti-tank planes, called "stormers," destroying 102 German aircraft and 34 Nazi vehicles in two days.

The Germans said "all hell" had been let loose on the Red armies as squadron after squadron of Nazi planes raged over their battle ranks.

Other world-wide developments:

Battle of Burma—A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch reported that strong Chinese forces were battling Japanese troops south of Myitkyina, northern terminus of the Burma railway from Rangoon.

Reuters said other Japanese columns were striking northward from the Chinese city of Lungling in a drive toward Paochan, a key Burma road city, 125 miles inside China.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, said Japanese troops had "trapped" all Chinese forces in northeast Burma by dynamiting a Salween river bridge.

The situation was confusing, but in general it appeared that the Japanese were bent on two major objectives:

1. Driving up the Burma road toward the heart of China, perhaps with the hope of capturing Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's war capital at Chungking, about 800 miles from Burma.

2. Driving Gen. Harold Alexander's exhausted British armies westward out of Burma into India.

Red Bombers Blast Nazi Kerch Columns

MOSCOW—(INS)—Strong forces of Soviet Stormovik bomber and fighter planes blasted at Nazi mechanized columns on the Kerch peninsula today after the Axis legions were reportedly driven back to their original positions from which they launched the first large-scale spring offensive.

One large column was hammered by planes of the Soviet fleet air arm and 34 trucks were destroyed, according to Tass, Soviet news agency, which said the Russian air force was "pinning down" the German mechanized columns in the Crimea.

Considerable forces on both sides were locked in fierce ground battles all along the peninsula. Concentrations of German cavalry, tank and infantry units were said to include both Italians and Rumanians.

Only at one point did the Germans hold their position against the Russians. This was on a sector in the vicinity of the Bay of Arabat, on the northern shore of the peninsula almost 50 miles west of Kerch. This drive was brought to a standstill.

Nazis Report Two Ships Sunk In Raid

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts)—(AP)—An 8,000-ton freighter and a small coastal ship were sunk and four large transports were damaged so heavily as to be total losses in German level and dive-bombing attacks on the important Russian supply port of Murmansk and along the Arctic coast, the German high command reported today.

The German bombers, aided by the navy, also sank a submarine off North Cape, Norway, a communique said.

Other overnight naval action included several skirmishes with light naval forces off the Netherlands and at the entrance to the English channel. Two British boats were damaged and one German boat was sunk, the high command added.

Germany, France Facing New Crisis

BULLETIN

VICHY—(U.P.)—Germany was reported tonight to have demanded that France refuse to surrender 140,000 tons of merchant ships now at Martinique, regardless of any United States proposals that may be made.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Reports received from Vichy and other European capitols were interpreted by observers in London today as an indication that relations between France and Germany were headed toward a new crisis.

This morning chief of government Pierre Laval held further conferences with members of his cabinet who are favorable to close collaboration with Germany.

Those with whom he conferred included State Secretary Rear Admiral Charles Platon, Minister of Colonies Jules Brevie and Interior Minister Robert Bousquet.

Laval was reported to have imparted to Chief of State Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain, "grave news" concerning talks he is said to have had with Reichs Marshal Hermann Goering and other Nazi leaders at Moulins on the border of occupied and unoccupied France.

Laval, it was said, is expected to meet with German authorities again soon.

The approach of the new crisis coincides with the threat of a new wave of terror in occupied France.

Reinhard ("Hangman") Heydrich who has arrived in Paris to take over police control already has conferred with Bousequet, it was said.

Six of Nine Who Joined Navy Today

While a large crowd of Mansfield draftees went away this morning to enter the army to the cheers of thousands, a group of nine navy volunteers departed without fanfare of any sort from the Mansfield recruiting office in the postoffice. They went to Cleveland and will be assigned from there. Six of the nine are shown here. They are, left to right, Dale L. Gimbel and Robert L. Parsons, both of R. D. 3, Mansfield; Donald T. Speakman, 155 Jeannette street; Robert C. Botzer, 188 Ashland road; Anthony Arcudi, Crestline, and William H. Pumphrey, Mt. Vernon. The other three men drove to Cleveland without the others in the group. They were Elwood Kaler, 502 Grant street; Herschel E. Hall, Butler, and Elmer F. Fox, Nova.

board recommended for 20 of them the immediate temporary furloughs which are extended to inductees on application to permit them to settle their affairs.

One of today's group, Burl Hoagland, expressed the feeling of the selectees in this message:

"We, the draftees, want the people of Mansfield to know that we deeply appreciate the send-offs the city has given the boys in the past, and we hope the city will do the same for the boys who leave in the future."

Details of the next send-off to be staged for the contingent from Board 2 at the end of this week, and of that for the Board 3 group next week, will be announced later.

Bag 15 Nazi Planes Off African Coast

CAIRO—(UP)—British fighter planes shot down 15 German planes at sea and probably destroyed others in a battle yesterday off the north African coast, an RAF communique reported today.

The 15 German planes which plunged into the sea included 13 Junkers-52's, and two Messerschmitt 110 fighters, while "other aircraft of the enemy formation probably were destroyed," it was stated.

The attacking British squadron lost only one plane.

The wording of the communique indicated that a large fleet of German planes had been intercepted, perhaps while escorting a convoy of Axis supplies ships en route to Africa.

Big Guns Duelling In North Africa

ROME (By Italian Wireless)—(INS)—Lively artillery activity on both sides of the north African front and new Axis air raids on Malta were announced by the Italian high command today.

Report Rommel Leaves Libyan Post

LONDON—(AP)—Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has been withdrawn from his command of German forces in Libya and may be given a command on the eastern front, Reuters news agency has reported in a dispatch from the German frontier.

The dispatch said that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, who has been directing the air attack on Malta from Sicily, also had left Italy and that German air power in the Mediterranean was being withdrawn to other fronts.

Sergeant Saves Nine From Flames In Airline Wreck

MILES CITY, Mont.—(AP)—A young army sergeant, Carl Dinius, smashed his way through the window of a crashed airliner and yanked open a cabin door to release nine passengers and the stewardess trapped in the blazing wreckage of a Northwest Airlines transport.

Three pilots lost their lives as the airliner overshot the Miles City airport in a strong wind yesterday.

While Sergeant Dinius tugged at the jammed door from the outside, Lieut. Alfred Allen of Cottage Grove, Ore., pushed from the inside.

"Some walked out and we helped some," related Dinius, traveling home on furlough from Savannah, Ga., to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Dinius of Miles City.

Killed in the crash were: Captain Eugene Shank, 38, of Minneapolis, the pilot; First Officer Donald H. Nygren, 21, Minneapolis.

Gravely burned before he scrambled clear, Capt. Karl R. Martin of Seattle, Northwest pilot traveling home to recuperate from illness, died soon afterward.

have been unable to remain on patrol for long periods and because they can drift slowly and quietly over the Nazi submarine hunting grounds.

(The Hindenburg, buoyed by a highly inflammable gas, exploded and burned as it was about to dock at Lakehurst, N. J., on May 6, 1937, killing 36 persons.)

It was announced in Ottawa yesterday that a submarine had entered the St. Lawrence river for the first time in history Monday and had sunk a freighter.

88 Survive Sub Blow In St. Lawrence

A ST. LAWRENCE RIVER PORT—(AP)—Some casualties in the first torpedo-sinking in Canada's inland waterways appeared probable today as check-ups among isolated fishing hamlets disclosed that 87 of 88 survivors had reached shore.

"There may have been some losses," said the mayor of one town where most of the rescued were being tended, "but we have been asked to say nothing about the matter."

Canadian officials disclosed nothing but the bare fact that an enemy submarine penetrated the Gulf of St. Lawrence and slipped into the St. Lawrence river itself to sink a freighter Monday.

Where the torpedoing occurred or what vessel was sunk was a military secret, but it meant that a submarine had slipped at least 275 miles into Canada from the Atlantic ocean, stealing past the dominion's heavy coastal defenses.

RESCUERS FIND 33 MORE BODIES AT MINE SHAFT

Toll Reaches 54 in Tragedy; Relatives See Victims Brought to Surface.

worked, some of the men were found huddled in little groups, their tools beside them.

David Christopher, a mine official, reported the finding of all the bodies shortly before 8 a. m. The victims were removed to funeral homes as they were taken from the mine.

The disaster was the worst in the Pennsylvania-Ohio-West Virginia soft coal fields since Nov. 29, 1940, when 31 men were killed in a blast at the Nelms mine of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal company, Cadiz, O.

The Cadiz tragedy was one of five in the area in 1940. A total of 265 lives were lost in the five blasts, including 91 killed at the No. 1 mine of the Pond Creek Pocahontas company, Bartley, W. Va., on Jan. 10; 72 at the Willow Grove No. 10 mine, Neffs, O., March 16; 63 at the Sonman Coal company mine at Sonman, Pa., July 15, and eight at the Raleigh Coal and Coke corporation mine, Beckley, W. Va.

Had the blast occurred a few minutes later, the death toll might have been much higher. Edgar Claypool, one of the late-afternoon shift workmen who already had entered the mine, said:

"There was only a faint shudder in the mine, but I felt a change of air pressure in my ears. I was about 1½ miles in the drift when it cut loose."

The rescue crews, some of them wearing gas masks, were forced to work cautiously as they neared the blast zone, building up the weakened walls and ceilings as they progressed.

Outside the mine, the Salvation Army set up a commissary to feed the rescue workers, among whom were experts from the U. S. Bureau of Mines, miners and firemen from Morgantown.

Some men of the next shift had entered and they and the survivors of the day shift raced out of the one entrance immediately after the explosion. Thirty were given oxygen treatments. They had gotton whiffs of the gas which filled the mine after the explosion.

A witness reported that a 100 foot sheet of flame roared out of the air shaft at the end of the mine opposite to the entrance. The explosion was of such force that a ventilating fan in an air shaft two miles from the blast was turned inside out.

Dewey Parks, one of the survivors, said: "Joe Levis and I had just come out of the mine on a man trip (mine train) when she let go. We had just turned the train over to the evening shift, when we heard the rumble that like to have split our ear drums."

F. E. Griffith, federal mine inspector, believed that a gas pocket had been "set off" by a spark of unknown origin.

The bodies first recovered had been horribly mangled by the explosion and only three had been identified. The company was endeavoring to identify the others through payroll records. Those identified were Nick Nimcheck, 24, married and a father, Fred Mongold, 40, and Allen Jones, 28, a Negro.

CUTS SUGAR

State Welfare Department Says Use Reduced 30 Per Cent.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The state welfare department, which used 2,500,000 pounds of sugar in 1941, has reduced its sugar consumption rate more than 30 per cent, in the first four months of this year, Assistant Director Herbert R. Mooney reported today.

Present plans are for each institution to receive for table use 50 per cent and for canning 90 per cent of what they used last year. The canning program will be expanded greatly over last year, and subsistence managers of the institutions are experimenting with sweetenings such as syrups to substitute for sugar, Mooney said.

Speaks In City

Col. Charles Brandon Booth, national field secretary of the Volunteers of America, shown here, will be in Mansfield for the next four days to speak before a number of clubs, at churches, and at the Ohio State Reformatory. His first appearance will be before the Kiwanis club Thursday noon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. He will speak at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at the Park Avenue Baptist church, and Friday night at the First Methodist church.

Even Underworld Won't Stoop to War Stamp Racket

NEW YORK—(INS)—Even the most hardened elements of the underworld would not stoop to a racket that victimized Uncle Sam's sales of war stamps.

In fact, it was revealed today, when they were approached with such a proposition they felt it their patriotic duty to report the matter to secret service agents of the treasury department.

That was how it came about that the six men arrested on charges of counterfeiting $52,500 worth of 25-cent war stamps were under surveillance for four months by federal men.

Not only did the men involved in the alleged ring have their plans revealed to treasury agents after they approached several local persons with offers of a "good thing," but they were even rebuffed by the notorious Purple gang of Detroit.

Experts said the stamps were amazingly good reproductions, but the Purple gang wouldn't touch them despite the chance of a 100 per cent profit.

port, tanker and supply ship movements.

Dispatches from advanced areas indicated that the Japanese either had or were expected to have soon a formidable naval force, which at command could move into the Coral sea area to effect a rendezvous with the invasion ships now assembling at bases in the Bismarck, Solomon and Louisiade islands.

It was believed likely that the Japanese main force would move down from the Carolina islands, the strongly fortified Japanese-mandated bases to the north.

Certainly, for the moment, the Allied victory in the Coral sea had staved off an invasion threat. But the feeling was strong here that Japan could not stand the heavy blows of MacArthur's aerial forces and must strike or get out of the northeastern invasion area.

Newspapers continued to warn the public that they must expect a Japanese attack on a much greater scale than that beaten back in the Coral sea.

DESCRIBES SHOP WORK AS GALION KIWANIANS MEET

Piner Long Tells of Training Provided Pupils and War Workers.

GALION—Piner Long, co-ordinator of machine shop work in the vocational department of the Galion high school, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club held at Hotel Talbott Tuesday noon.

In telling of the work of the local machine shop department, Long explained that it operates under the division of trades and industries as an all-day school. Fifteen seniors are now enrolled, with 11 employed in local industry.

The department also operates war work classes in machine shop. Welding is taught to train both men and womer in industry. Long said that Ohio is expected to train 700,000 additional workers for industry during the next 18 months.

At the next meeting of the club, John F. McCrystal, Sandusky, lieutenant governor of the Fourth Kiwanis district, will make an official visit. At Tuesday's meeting Marvin Adams, superintendent of the Crawford county children's home was a guest.

TRIO INDICTED FOR ROBBERY

Ashland Grand Jury Hands In Four True Bills During Session.

ASHLAND — Indictments for armed robbery against Mike Bietro and William Milete and an indictment for robbery were returned against Dino C. Valerian by Ashland county grand jurors in session yesterday. Indictments were returned in connection with the robbery of the Bank restaurant at Loudonville April 27.

Valerian, alleged driver of the bandit car, was the first to be arrested. Police said he confessed to the trobbery in which $300 was obtained from Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stone, proprietors of the Bank restaurant. He was arrested in Cleveland, May 2.

Milete was arrested in Niles on May 6 and Pietro gave himself up to Cleveland police May 7. All three have been held in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bonds since their arrests. The three also face charges of robberies in Cuyahoga county.

Grand jurors yesterday also indicted Arthur Pyers of Loudonville on a charge of rape. He has been held in the county jail since his arrest on May 9.

Five witnesses were examined in the four cases considered yesterday. Foreman of the grand jury was J. F. Church of Loudonville.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1942.

Gas consumption should be gauged by "necessary driving," but it's hard to agree on a definition.

Use of Gas In the War

GEN. SHERMAN'S famous epigram "War is hell" was spoken many years before the Germans first used poison gas in the battle of Ypres, April 22, 1915; but the use of gas in the first World war and hints that use of it may recur in the present conflict only deepen the significance of the general's remark.

When Prime Minister Winston Churchill sternly warned the Nazis that employing gas against the Russians would bring wholesale retaliation against war objectives in Germany, he spoke a threat whose scope cannot be envisaged.

Poison gas was outlawed by the treaty of Versailles and subsequently by the Geneva convention of 1929. Germany signed both pacts. But no nation trusted another. Experiments with gas went on and developments became the deepest of military secrets.

There are rumors of every kind. One of the latest is that Germany has an invisible, odorless gas that is immediately fatal.

Whatever the enemy has, we can be sure that the Allies can equal if not surpass it in deadliness. With Britain, aided by the United States, rapidly gaining control of the air over Germany it seems that Nazis would be slow to launch the horror of gas war.

But gas is a weapon of desperation. As such, it is a thing to be faced with all calmness that can be summoned.

Captain John H. Craig, military expert, has offered certain information which should contribute to a sensible attitude toward gas attacks.

Briefly, Capt. Craig says: the United States has less to fear than any other nation from gas raids because it would require at least a five-ton bomber to haul a single 1,000-pound gas bomb across the Atlantic and get back to the plane base;

Cities would suffer least because most factories and even homes are fairly gas-proof if the occupants just stay inside and keep all openings closed tightly;

Even a slight breeze would dissipate gas rapidly;

But armies in the field, without the protection of "sealable" buildings would suffer most.

All this is not to minimize the danger nor the refined barbarism of a gas war. However, the greater the danger, the greater the necessity for facing it bravely and with all the calmness that can be mustered.

An Abundance—Afterward

WHILE many Americans are afraid that this war will end our capitalist system, Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division in the department of justice, foresees a great future for capitalism. All that is necessary to save it and make it a beneficent power in American life, he holds, is to free it from monopolistic control. And he believes the war will help. Addressing recently an audience of business and professional men, he said:

"Full production for the war effort will sweep aside monopolies and cartels and other restrictive practices and open up new enterprises beyond our dreams, which is another way of saying the war will restore the capitalistic system of free enterprise."

That is, with a little timely help from people like Mr. Arnold who thoroughly believe in free enterprise. Monopolistic groups must not be allowed to get control of this vast new production. Properly handled, "out of the necessity of making our free enterprise so efficient that it will win this war, we will also make it so efficient that it will produce the greatest prosperity we have ever known."

He is in his crusade to free big business, he says, because he likes big business—not because he hates it. He wants to make it more effective, to break its fetters and give everybody a chance at the goods and wealth this country can attain through real economic freedom.

Last Word On Coughlin

THE silencing of Charles E. Coughlin's voice in public affairs, where it has long been on the edge of sedition if not over the edge, now seems complete. The government has done its part with quiet thoroughness, and the troublesome priest's own ecclesiastical superiors have done likewise.

There was never any indication of church support for Father Coughlin's erratic career as a publicist. Apparently his ecclesiastical superiors tolerated his journalistic adventures and offenses, so far as they did so, unwillingly but in a spirit of democratic tolerance of free speech. Their own relief in the final silencing of their troublesome "problem child" is evident in a statement made by Most Rev. Edward Mooney, archbishop of Detroit, on the suspension of Father Coughlin's magazine. Expressing his gratification, he says:

"I had a definite and explicit commitment from Father Coughlin on May 1 that, from that date forward, his severance of all connection, whether direct or indirect, with the magazine, would be absolute and complete. My understanding with him is sufficiently broad and firm to exclude effectively the recurrence of any such unpleasant situation." So that's that.

The Bottom Rail

"BOTTOM rail's on top now." So some newly-freed slaves called out during reconstruction days in the South, that unhappy period when a combination of the ignorant and corrupt devastated the states below Mason and Dixon's Line.

Some day in the conquered European countries the bottom rail will get on top. Their provocation is far greater than even that of the Negroes in the old South. Slavery meant many unhappy things for the Negro, but not country-wide cruelty and starvation, like the slavery imposed by the Nazis. Let them beware of the time when the ruled become the rulers.

Madagascar

THAT sigh of relief came from the united folks of all the United Nations when they heard of the British landing on Madagascar. Dakar, they trust, will fall into their hands before too long. Then Martinique and Guadeloupe. It took a long time to get the movement started in the right direction, but it's under way at last. It will gather speed before the year's out.

Women to Keep Eye on Prices

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

Since women do or dictate most of our civilian spending, why shoudn't they have principal charge of the job of keeping living's cost under control, thus keeping a lid on the inflation that there's so much worrying about?

From Prince Fixer Leon Henderson's office comes the answer that they certainly should, provided they'll lend a strong, willing hand. Seemingly they will, for many of 'em have started in at it already, calling would-be profiteers severely to account and filing formal complaints against 'em if they prove to be balky. Many of the gals are quite clamorous for official recognition of their sex's importance in the campaign.

Mere men have to boss our war-supply buying, but that's comparatively an easy assignment alongside the ladies' problem.

The war buyers' figures are tremendously higher than the ones their wives, sisters, feminine cousins and aunts have to deal with, but precious little room for judgment is left, in connection with an armament or munitions purchasers' calculations. Exactly what he's got to have, he's GOT to have. He can't economize here and there. And he can't shop around. If a housewife finds the price of some domestic commodity out of hand, she can cut that item out, and serve a cheaper substitute.

Legitimate Help.

Wartime industrial production has a reasonable excuse for hiking prices, also.

Suppose that a factory, hitherto engaged in supplying tincans or bottletops to transform itself, overnight, into plane, gun or munitions - making. It can legitimately plead that it hasn't the equipment or personnel for its new function and, unless helped, will go bust and no longer be good for ANYTHING. That outfit isn't necessarily gratfing.

But suppose a guy's product is irrevocably in the peacetime class—unchangably so, as with groceries, meat and fuel for kitchen stoves? The wartime drain gives HIM a chance to boost his figures, making him a sure-enough profiteer.

Well, OPA, the agricultural department and various other agencies can keep an eye on HIM down to the point where he ceases to classify as a wholesaler, but retail merchants are pretty hard to supervise. They're too numerous and scattered to supervise from central headquarters." They're the birds the womenfolk are relied on to hold in line—first by warning 'em, then by reporting 'em to Uncle Sam.

The girls are at it today.

My wife says, "Oh gee!" when the grocer names his terms. She brings our edibles home on our kids' own express wagon, to save delivery tires. She does most of our own laundrying. She orders my pants and shirts and shoes. I don't like to admit that she's more patriotic than I am, but she's a more 100-percenter.

I've heard reports of women's advocacy of restrictions on tobacco consumption—higher prices, anyway.

It's a fortunate thing for alcoholics that we had the prohibition experience back in the 1920's. Otherwise we unquestionably would be having a perfect rampage of it right now. Taking a drink the other day with Dr. J. M. Doran, our last dry enforcement officer, the doc said it was a blessing—or our intemperance would be crippling our war effort today.

I do hear complaint from the ladies relative to proposed restrictions on ice cream.

The volume of the stuff's sale isn't so much criticized, but its flavors are needlessly numerous, it's said. Vanilla, particularly, is described as too shy. The children don't especially care (I suppose they think they can bootleg what they need), but their mothers do.

Apropos temperance there's this story of record in print:

A customer came into the National Press club and said, "Gimme a sarsaparilla." "Sorry," said the bartender. "Due to wartimes, we haven't got any." "Oh, well," said the applicant. "Gimme a cocacola." "Haven't got any," replied the dispenser. "Then a lemon squash." "No lemon squash on tap." "Then," quoth the customer, "gimme a double Scotch. Heaven knows I wanted a temperance drink."

Robert Dintaman won The News-Journal marble contest.

Sydney D. Mahan was named general advertising head of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Samuel S. Thoma, 78, died.

Mrs. H. A. Bair was re-elected president of the West Fifth street School Mothers' club.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 13—England's first successful colony in the New World, Jamestown, was founded on May 13, 1607. Had it not been for the supplies obtained from the Indians it is doubtful whether the group would have lasted through the first winter. As it was, more than half the settlers died of fever from malarial air and the brackish water of the James river upon which they had settled.

Get on With the Job!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I LIKE that British expression, "Get on with the job." There's something deeply American as well as British in it, something that goes to the roots of every real man or woman, whatever their nationality.

"Get on with the job" That was the phrase that made America. There was nothing certain about that phrase and there was nothing certain about the job which our early fathers faced. They tackled new dangers every day and made a mess of a lot of them. They were as limited and handicapped as we are still handicapped by their ignorance, their fear and suspicion. But there was something in them, something arrogant and determined, which rose above their fear and ignorance. They knew they were bound to make mistakes. They knew they were bound to know periods of despair and despondency. But there was something in them, valiant and vital, which cried: "Get on with the job!" And so they got on and conquered.

"Get on with the job!" It's a great slogan. None of us knows what the job exactly is. None of us knows what chances we may be forced to take . . . what blunders we may make in our struggles . . . but this we can know, all of us:

WE CAN GET ON WITH THE JOB.

Whether we're working in a foundry or a hospital or standing over a sink, peeling the potatoes and minding a crying baby at the same time, WE CAN GET ON WITH THE JOB. For this job isn't confined to front-line trenches, to Alaska or Burma, India or Australia. It's a job that spreads into every heart that loves freedom and self-respect and is determined to protect this way of life from the barbarian code.

"GET ON WITH THE JOB!" Get on with that portion of the job which lies immediately beneath your hand, and upon your tired shoulders. You are as much a part of the army as any lad who is fighting in Britain or France, India or China. Your work is no more monotonous than theirs. The bombs which threaten them are no more dangerous than the discouragement which threatens your own heart today.

"GET ON WITH THE JOB!" This is no time for private grief or fear. This is no time to count your sacrifices. There is one duty and one duty only facing you, Get on with the job! You are still free men and women—FIGHT TO PRESERVE THAT FREEDOM. You still possess the land your fathers cleared—FIGHT TO SAVE THAT LAND. FIGHT TO BRING YOUR CHILDREN UP IN ITS NOBLE TRADITIONS . . . IN ITS INVINCIBLE PRIDE.

FIGHT TO KEEP AMERICA ON THE MAP!

Stop thinking that you don't count and that your labors are obscure and meaningless. You and your work are not meaningless; they are as important as any work on earth. They are a part of the life and death conflict which we are facing. A clean sink, a healthy child . . . a mended fence . . . these carry on civilization as surely as the bloodiest flag, the swiftest bomber.

GET ON WITH THE JOB! ALL WE HAVE AND ALL WE NEED DEPEND ON THAT JOB AND ON YOU.

Evidence Claimed to Show RFC Delayed Synthetic Rubber Work

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—During the public hearings on the reason for the delay in quantity production of synthetic rubber in the United States, the Truman investigating committee held a secret session at which officials of Standard Oil of New Jersey were closely questioned.

In the course of this secret interrogation, W. S. Farish, president of the corporation, declared that plans for the production of synthetic rubber "were held in a state of suspended animation" for several months by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The following are extracts of Farish's heretofore undisclosed testimony taken from the official transcript of this secret session:

MR. FARISH: "In June, 1940 to October, 1940, a committee of the advisory committee and the Council of National Defense were the government agency to consider and promote synthetic rubber. This committee soon found that it could make only suggestions which no one was authorized to carry out, so in the fall of 1940 the responsibility was turned over to the RFC.

"This agency worked upon the rubber plans with Standard and other companies, which led to the completion of a definite program in January, 1941. These plans called for 75 per cent of the capital to come from the government and 25 per cent from industry. They were held in a state of suspended animation by the RFC for several months, due possibly, to a desire to save taxpayers money. Finally, on June 22, 1941, Standard was authorized to go ahead with its part of a new and larger program financed largely by Defense Plant Corporation."

MR. HOWARD (another Standard official): "Our attitude is perhaps best shown on this matter of plans in this way; in July 1941, we were asked by RFC to prepare plans for a 15,000 ton plant. That work was suspended by RFC a little later. Despite that suspension we continued at our own expense on those plans in order that there might be no delay, and when the war broke out in the Pacific and we were ordered to resume work on the plans, they were virtually complete."

Mysterious Influence.

MR. FARISH: "I would like to make just one comment on the general objective, as I understand it, that this sub-committee is dealing with, and that is, you are trying to find out, has there been any delay in the production of synthetic rubber? If there has been any delay, whose fault is it or what caused it? I simply want to reiterate that I can't find any logical reason why any rubber company or any oil company would be concerned with, or a party to, any delay.

"There has been some reluctance, and I might say some slow movement, on the part of government authorities. My thinking apparatus tells me there has been, perhaps, some influence at work that has caused some delay."

SENATOR TRUMAN: "We want to find out what that influence is and see if we can stop it."

MR. FARISH: "I don't know what has caused the delay. There has been some reluctance on the part of the government to push this question and to put money into it. They might have thought nothing was going to happen to our supplies in the Far East. They might not have taken the threat of a shortage seriously, or they may have been influenced by other considerations."

Note: In his testimony before the committee, RFC Boss Jesse Jones vehemently denied that he was responsible for the synthetic rubber delay.

It's On the Cuff.

The tailoring experts of the Quartermaster corps, using tape measure and slide rule, have figured that by leaving the cuffs off soldiers' uniforms, they save enough wool to make 150,000 additional uniforms.

It takes three yards to make a uniform—without cuffs. To add cuffs would require an additional .15 of a yard of cloth.

On the basis of the 3,000,000 uniforms now being provided, the saving of .15 of a yard on each amounts to 150,000 suits.

Say the Quartermaster General: "Civilians take note."

No. 1 Book Reader.

The man who has read the most books in the world is what his associates in the Library of Congress call Charles Martel, gray, cheery little man who has been in the cataloguing division since 1897.

He himself is not sure of the number of books he has read. He replies, "Well let's see. Eight hours a day, 100 pages an hour, 43 years makes—what would you guess?"

Library experts put the number at not less than 50,000 books. Martel smiles gently, and keeps on reading.

Born in Switzerland 80 years ago, Martel lived with an uncle who ran a book-shop in Zurich. He became such an authority on the stock of the shop that whenever a customer inquired about the contents of a book, the uncle would summon young Charles.

He still reads prodigiously and every day can be found in his cubby-hole office poring over piles of books that cover every inch of the floor. Most modern books, Martel considers to be trash. Heavy stuff is his meat. Kant's famous "Critique of Pure Reason" slowed Martel up the most. He was able to devour it only at the rate of 20 pages an hour as compared to his normal pace of 100 pages an hour.

Martel retired ten years ago as head of the cataloguing division, but the library asked him to continue in a sort of emeritus status as a consultant. He eagerly agreed because to him reading is living. Martel never stops reading.

After a 9-5 day at the library, he settles down at home to some private reading. And when he retires, he reads in bed before going to sleep.

The army's post exchanges, which sell nicknacks and necessities to soldiers, now do business at the rate of a billion dollars a year. . . . Among the men on Corregidor were four former practising attorneys and two college professors. . . . Great Britain's expanded embassy staff in Washington now includes one ambassador, two ministers, seven naval attaches, four military attaches, four commercial secretaries, five counselors, five first secretaries, eleven second secretaries, and five third secretaries. . . . Highly significant piece of intelligence information on the strained German food situation: Stringent orders have been issued prohibiting the feeding of potatoes to hogs. In Naziland the spud is a major food item for both humans and hogs.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It is a moth-eaten expression to say that Broadway is the crossroads of the world, but there happens often meetings in the White Light Lane for which there isn't a more descriptive phrase. For instance, two men met here the other day for no other reason than that they had the same name and as a result they pooled their information to get at last a compact history of the Billingsly family.

One man is Kirby Billingsly, an editor of "The Wenatchee (Wash.) World" and the other man is the celebrated Sherman Billingsley, boniface of the noted Stork club, glamorous rendezvous of stage, screen and society celebrities in the bright light sector.

Kirby B. came to New York to attend a convention of editors and, as he had read so much about Sherman B. in Broadway columns, he decided to call upon him in his resplendent club and see if they were relatives.

It was quite a meeting. In the first place Kirby B. and Sherman B. look enough alike almost to be twin brothers. Then they started comparing family history and Sherman B. and Kirby B. began exchanging so much information about their mutual ancestors that it appeared, late in the night, that they were well on their way to compiling a family history that would go back to the middle ages.

And both of them had been equally curious about their family history, and had, coincidentally, done much research. Sherman B., for instance, had dug up the fact that the family name is really two words—being a contraction of two old English names—"Billings" and "Slee."

After this meeting Kirby B, returned to the West, leaving Sherman B, an invitation to come out to Washington and catch some salmon. Sherman B. thought that was a fetching idea except that out in the kitchen of his Stork club he already had a refrigerator compartment full of salmon.

Note: This observer will be glad to present himself on Kirby B.'s fishing preserve as Sherman B.'s official representative if Sherman B. is too busy to accept Kirby B.'s kind invitation in person.

Never in all her born days of reading nice things about herself has Katharine Cornell had such poetic valentines printed about her as appeared this week in ALL the metropolitan newspapers.

The drama observers minced no words in saying Shaw's "Candida" had received its finest presentation. That Miss Cornell had played "Candida" twice before gives warming testimony to the sincerity and effort she has put into her activities in behalf of the Army and Navy relief.

The spontaneous flow of critical tribute that came from New York's top critics seem to me to climax any recognition that even so wonderful an actress as Miss Cornell could hope to achieve.

Rationing Sugar

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ALONG with thousands of others, I helped write sugar rationing applicatons and filled out blank spaces in each book. In three short afternoons and nights the teachers of the public schools completed a splendid job. Uncomplainingly they doubled their hours of labor, sat on hard chairs and wrote on tables too high for comfort for hours on end. Writers cramp—yes indeed, but that happened often during many years of high school and college training. We just rubbed our quivering finger muscles downward toward the palm and started on another application.

The work was interesting. Always a brand new individual sat before me across the table. About 80 per cent were women. The fourth to come was a buxom red cheeked girl of nineteen or so, tall and stately, with a smile that was contagious. I swear I made more errors on her application than on all the others put together. She was married just two weeks before and came to get two books by which they could buy their first pound of sugar in their new home.

"That won't be much to start on," I suggested.

"It'll be enough," she answeded, with mingled pride and regret. "He's leaving next week for California. He'll soon be a pilot and then I think he'll go across." She smiled, thanked me, and left.

An old lady, 82, came next. "I'm here to register," she said. "I think it's fine to save the sugar while we've got some yet! Nobody's kicking that I've talked to. I've got six grandsons in this war—all sent across except one. I mayn't see the end of it, but if it's sugar or other things we have to give up, I'm satisfied."

Just when my time was up to leave for dinner and some of my fellow workers had already gone, a woman beyond middle age came in and unfolded a paper on which were clearly itemized in pencil the height, the weight, the color of eyes and hair, the age to the exact day of herself, her husband and ten children. With a sigh, and a bit of calculation based on former experience, I knew that I would not get away for nearly an hour.

She, was 48, blue eyes, blond hair, with a distinct accent in her speech. I told her jokingly that I felt sure she did not come from Ireland. "The whole map of Germany is on me, I know," she said "but all of us—me and my husband and the children—are Americans! We'd do without lots of things to help America!"

As one who wrote a very small portion of the sugar rationing cards, I am happy to say it was a rare delight to do this service. People waited for their turn, without complaint. Those I met were all very willing to sacrifice. I felt in this the great spirit of United States of America.

TWO COUPLES TELL OF THEIR BETROTHALS

Miss Dorothy Ekedahl to Wed Lieut. Kenneth Kullberg; Miss Mary Elizabeth Bishop To Marry W. M. Bell.

ANNOUNCEMENT is being made here today of the coming marriage of two couples known in Mansfield. From Hattiesburg, Miss., comes the word of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Ekedahl, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. H. G. Ekedahl, formerly of Mansfield, to Lieut. Kenneth O. Kullberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kullberg of Providence, R. I. No date has been set for the wedding.

J. J. Bishop, 187 East Third street, announces the coming marriage of his daughter, Mary Elizabeth Bishop, 454 South Main street, to Wendell Marks Bell, 6 Stoodt avenue. The closed ceremony for the immediate families and a few friends will take place Saturday, June 13, at 4 o'clock before the altar of the First Lutheran church. Rev. G. E. Swoyer will officiate. Miss Bishop, a graduate of Mansfield high school, is employed at the Ohio Brass company.

Mr. Bell, a junior at the College of Medicine, Ohio State university, was also a Mansfield Senior high school graduate. He is president of the medical fraternity, Beta Epsilon chapter of Theta Kappa Psi.

The first of the series of prenuptial parties honoring Miss Bishop will be given May 26 at the home of Mrs. William Gross, 37 Chilton avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Gross have been chosen as attendants for Miss Bishop and Mr. Bell.

Recital Given by Daisie M. Gibson Pupils Tuesday

Violin pupils of Mrs. Daisie M. Gibson presented a recital at the ballroom of the American Legion last evening at 8:15. They were assisted by Leo Hans, tenor and Ernest Schafer, cellist. A large group of friends and relatives were in attendance for the program.

The reception committee was composed of John Klinger, James Curry and William Horst. Guests were present from Crestline, Galion, Butler, Ashland, Shelby and Columbus. Announcement was made that the Boys' Violin Quartet will present a program in Mt. Vernon. The next recital by Mrs. Gibson's pupils will be a joint program with students of Mrs. Thurza Hazeltine. At that time the Horst family will be presented—Mary, soprano, William, violinist, and Virginia, accompanist. This will be sometime early in June.

The program last evening was as follows: "Sonatina in D major" by Schubert, played by George Porterfield, son of Mrs. Marie Porterfield, and accompanied by George Tuttle; "Sonate No. 1" by Corelli, played by Porterfield, violin, Allen Sanford, violin, Ernest Schafer, cellist, and Walter Simon, pianist; "Scene de Ballet" by DeBeriot, played by Richard Beilstein, son of Mr. and Mrs Earl Beilstein, and accompanied by David Weimer; "Romance" by Rubinstein, "I Heard a Forest Prayer" by DeRose and "If God Left Only You" by Densmore, sung by Hans, accompanied by Mrs Porterfield, "Concerto in G Major" No. 23, by Viotti, played by William Klinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Klinger, accompanied by Albert Smith, jr; and "Two Finnish Folk Songs" by Novacek, "Hopak" by Moussorgsky, and "Pavane and Chorals" by Wachs, played by Porterfield, Beilstein, Klinger and Sanford, and accompanied by Simon. Young Sanford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sanford

Many Are Making Advance Arrangements

It is becoming quite customary to make arrangements for funeral service before the need arises. There are many reasons why this is a wise precaution.

Perhaps most important of these is assurance that both the cost and the service will be in accordance with the normal desires of a family—not something rushed into during the stress of grief.

Act and Dress With Decorum When at Camp

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Perhaps seven letters don't make an issue any more than one swallow makes a summer, but the seven letters that came in my mail this morning from soldiers may give girls who visit camps something to think about.

It may be because of a questioning eyebrow on the part of the higher-ups, but the soldiers like the girls who visit them to look discreet, dress conventionally, not to be loud or wear challenging makeup. The boys may date young ladies who go in for these things outside the reservation. But they want only "nice girls" visiting them at camp.

And they like their visitors to look feminine. Soldiers see so much of khaki, caps askew and brass buttons that they prefer young ladies with flowers in their hats rather than girls in uniform. This preference for the girly-girly rather than the semi-masculine recalls that amusing controversy which took place on the Pacific Coast a few weeks ago and, for all I know, may still be exchanging shots. The boys in one camp stood up for the girls in uniform, saying it showed they wanted to be helpful and were doing their best to "keep 'em flying." Their antagonists said uniforms were no treat to them and that they preferred out-and-out femininity.

They don't object to girls using makeup, these boys write me from the camps, but they don't like it put on with a trowel. And they're not overly partial to a girl sketching a new mouth on her face every fifteen minutes or so. They don't care whether she uses lipstick or not, but they like mouths more than less permanent. Hair-combing is disgusting, and when done at the table becomes a felony.

This will answer the heart-broken letter of two girls who, dressed in slacks, had a sudden impulse to visit a camp. While there is no Army regulation concerning the admission of girls dressed in these garments, the commanding officers in charge of camps do not encourage them. So the young ladies were escorted outside, to their deep humiliation.

No, my dears, don't consider wearing slacks if you have an impulse to visit your sweetheart or brother at an Army post. They are taboo, and the humiliation you suffer won't be a patch on what you bring down on his head when you turn up in slacks.

Hollywood stars going out on U.S.O. tours are more particular about their camp trousseaux than what they wear on the screens or when they have their publicity photographs taken.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT

"Talking across the table" is considered highly unethical, as thereby you give information to your partner which he is not entitled to possess. Even were that not so, informative remarks about your hand, except by means of the bids you make, come under the heading of very bad bridge. If you are trying to mislead an opponent, once again you are out of bounds from the standpoint of the proprieties, and if you are speaking the truth, you may find that the information gets used against you by a clever enemy. And it will serve you right.

East did not say a word during the bidding of this deal, but after West led the heart 9 to the J, he could not contain himself. "Here's one you won't make," he exulted.

W. Mark Noble, Boston insurance expert, bent a keen ear to the remark, and then decided upon the correct way to insure himself against defeat. Deciding to count upon East for all of the outstanding strength, and therefore to refrain from finessing either clubs or diamonds, he elected to build a beautiful "Vienna coup."

He ruffed the second heart lead and led to the club A, to deliberately set up East's K, and then ran off his remaining seven spades. As he led the last one, he retained the club 10-9 and the diamond 7, while in dummy he kept the diamond A-K-J, discarding the club Q. East could not discard the club K without making the 10 good, so tossed a diamond from the Q-10-8, whereupon the dummy's three diamonds finished the hand.

Use Inexpensive Foods for Meals

By BETSY NEWMAN

TODAY I'm giving a menu which looks elaborate at first glance, but really uses inexpensive ingredients to make an attractive and appetizing meal. Corn syrup is used for sweetening the baked apples, and stuffing them with dried fruits gives them the necessary pep that they often lack at this time of the year.

Today's Menu.

Mexican Hamburger Casserole
Buttered Carrots
Jellied Pickled Beet Ring for Cole Slaw
Baked Apples with Dried Fruit Filling
Tea or Coffee

Mexican Hamburger Casserole

1 8-or 9-oz. pkg. macaroni
1 cup minced onion
¼ cup minced green pepper
2 tablespoons lard or other fat
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 lb. ground round or chuck beef
6 tablespoons grated cheese
1½ cups well-seasoned white sauce
½ cup canned tomatoes

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender, drain. Fry onion and green pepper in lard until tender, add meat, and cook until meat has lost its red color, stirring frequently. Add salt and pepper. Make white sauce and add 4 tablespoons of cheese to it, then gradually add tomatoes, stirring constantly. Arrange alternate layers of macaroni, meat and tomato sauce in casserole, sprinkle with remaining cheese and bake, uncovered, in moderate hot oven (400° F.) for 40 minutes.

Jellied Pickled Beet Ring.

1 tablespoon plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup hot water
2 tablespoons white corn syrup
3 tablespoons horseradish
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup diced, cooked celery
1 cup diced, cooked beets

Soften gelatin in cold water, add hot water and stir until dissolved; add corn syrup, salt, horseradish, vinegar and lemon juice, and set aside to cool. When it begins to thicken stir in celery and beets. Rinse a ring mold or individual ring molds, with cold water, turn gelatin mixture into it, and chill until firm. Unmold and fill center with cole slaw. Serves 8.

Baked Apples.

6 baking apples
½ cup cooked, chopped prunes
½ cup chopped dates
2 tablespoons chopped nuts
½ cup dark colored corn syrup
¼ cup hot water

Wash and core apples, but do not peel. Put in shallow baking dish. Combine prunes with dates, nuts and ¼ cup corn syrup, and stuff apples with mixture. Place in hot oven (400° F.) and bake for 45 minutes, or until tender. Mix remaining corn syrup with water and use to baste apples frequently during baking period. Serves 6.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 14.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

WHILE there will be much activity and enterprise on this day, according to lunar transits, yet the solar position points to a definite tendency toward processes and policies that make for security and endurance rather than spectacular or aggressive operations. Under certain auguries of treachery, underhand doings and intrigues this may prove wise, with efforts directed toward safeguarding possessions.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of steady movement in the direction of slow growth, attainment of solid possessions and enduring fortune rather than any measure of spectacular or fleeting flashes of luck. All forms of hazard and chance taking might be profitless, while sound and solid effort and propositions would spell security and yield concrete possessions in property, investments and personal prestige and gratification. Be alert to intrigue, deception and fraud.

A child born on this day while talented, energetic and forceful should be sound, industrious and faithful in its attack on success and good fortune.

ALL-BRAN FUDGE SQUARES—BEST YOU EVER TASTED!

Every mother in the land will want to bake these scrumptious cookies. Children will demolish a plate of them in a wink. Grown-ups rave about their "different" taste and new crunchy texture. They're made, of course, with the famous cereal, Kellogg's All-Bran.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN FUDGE SQUARES

3 squares unsweetened chocolate	1 cup sugar
½ cup butter	⅔ cup flour
2 eggs	½ cup All-Bran
	½ cup nutmeats
	1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt chocolate over hot water and add butter. Beat eggs well, add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add melted chocolate and butter. Stir in flour, All-Bran, chopped nutmeats and flavoring. Pour into greased pan, making a layer about one-third inch thick. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 20 minutes. Yield: Sixteen 2-inch squares (8 x 8 inch pan).

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

MY COUSIN JACK, so dramatically come back into my life, was thoroughly angry now, and his brows were contracted into a forbidding frown as he answered me.

"I don't know why you are baiting me like this, Margaret," he said. "It isn't like you. But," as the anger died from his face, "I suppose you are wielding cudgels for Katharine. You have before, you know."

"And with reason," I said curtly, not caring to dwell upon that old bitter time when this beloved cousin of mine, returned with shattered nerves from the war, had, as I thought, taken advantage of his condition to make life very difficult for his winsome wife.

"And with reason," he repeated sadly, with something in his voice that suddenly disarmed me. There was something here, I said to myself, which I did not understand. I must reserve judgment until it was cleared up.

"We are at cross purposes, I am afraid, Jack," I said with sudden resolution. "Let us put our cards on the table. To my certain knowledge Katherine has not heard from you in nearly two years."

"That can't be possible!" he said. "Are you sure? But, of course," he apologized quickly, "I should not have asked that question. You never exaggerate. But—could not Katherine have kept the letters to herself!"

"She could, certainly," I said, "but she didn't. And have you ever known Katherine to tell a falsehood?"

"Never!" he said emphatically. "Then you will believe me when I tell you that while she never has complained, she not long ago, in answer to a question from me, told me that she had not heard from you in almost two years."

Sent Twelve Long Letters.

"How long ago did she tell you that?"

"Less than a month ago."

"Then something is very wrong," he said heavily. "Look here, Margaret; we know Katherine always tells the truth. But—have you ever known me to utter a deliberate lie?"

"Never!" I said, with as much emphasis as he had used.

"Then I am going to tell you this. For the past two years I have written something to Katherine every day—a sort of diary for her benefit—and mailed long installments when our mail went out, once in two months."

"Oh, how awful!" I said, horrified into raising my voice.

"Sorry I was so thoughtless," I said, "but I was so astounded I forgot everything else. And now it is my turn to tell you something. Katherine wrote you a long letter every two weeks for over a year, trying to hold the belief that something had happened to your rail communications. Then she gave up."

Dawning of Suspicion.

There was something besides astonishment in his face now; a blackness and bleakness that could mean only one thing—the dawning of suspicion of something or somebody.

"There is something terribly wrong somewhere," he repeated. "I have not received a word from Katharine for over two years. I finally concluded that she must have decided she could no longer go on. And I could not blame her. If ever a man treated his wife as if she were 'something better than his dog, a little dearer than his horse,' I was that man."

TELLS OF GRIM RETREAT FROM BURMA BATTLES

Writer Reports How British Were Forced to Fall Back Across Deserts, Jungles.

(Editor's Note: Daniel De Luce has covered the Burma campaign for the Associated Press from the first, when the American Volunteer group of fliers began fighting there, until the recent Allied reverses. Here is his dramatic story of the defeat and his escape to India.)

By DANIEL DE LUCE

CALCUTTA, India —(AP)— Across cactus plants seared by desert heat, through steamy jungle swamps, hidden deep in black leech-infested mud the survivors of the little British Imperial army in Burma are fighting on in the toughest evacuation of World War II.

Harassed by enemy fighters and bombers which for nearly seven weeks have been overwhelmingly supreme, stabbed at from ambush by flood-crazed bands of native traitors, the haggard and weary riflemen of half a dozen one-time crack battalions of British armored force crews and wiry Sepoys from Indian units are approaching within a few scores of miles the mountainous Assam frontier of India—a frontier where the Japanese invaders can and must be held at bay.

What happened in Burma constitutes a military tragedy for the United Nations—as bitter in its way as Singapore, Java, Manila and perhaps as avoidable.

For the pitifully small handful of Imperial soldiers from two Imperial divisions who lost lower Burma, for the few understrength Chinese divisions which steamed the Japanese conquest for more than a month in central Burma observers have had nothing but praise.

They were ordered to do what events have proved impossible. Their casualties were appalling.

The majority of the stocky singing British I saw liking into the Salween battle zone, and later below Mandaly in March, were killed in combat.

Some retreated out of the death pockets. Always there was a new temporary line established farther back. Always it was weaker than the previous line.

For hundreds of miles it was a case of fight, withdraw and fight again.

Every mile backward Allied air support faded until in April there literally was nothing left.

Always enemy troops and Burmese treachery increased.

The fall of Rangoon March 8 doomed Burma. The British in the ranks knew it as well as the officers. They kept on fighting. They are fighting today. Surrender isn't in their vocabulary.

What Imperial troops reach the rugged Indian frontier will make their way on foot. Their 12-ton American tanks with the cherry red desert rat insignia, their six-wheeled and four-wheeled trucks, their mobile anti-aircraft artillery, their field artillery admittedly cannot be manhandled over the 150 miles of sandy wastes and swampy morasses to the nearest Assam passes that can be negotiated by motors.

Despite half a century of British rule, upper Burma never was linked to neighboring India by even one good road.

If there had been one, the Burma disaster might not have happened.

Instead of one lone battalion sent to Burma from India by air after the loss of Rangoon, several divisions might have been hurried across by road to throw back the reinforced Japanese.

Thirteen days ago on military order I left the bomb-smashed town of Schwebo, 60 miles northwest of Mandalay, coincident with the transfer of British army headquarters to Myitkyina, which is halfway from Schwebo to the eternal snows of Tibet.

Defeat that had stared the British army in the face since the enemy broke through to the Rangoon delta in February was no longer a probability. It was an acknowledged fact.

In a thunder storm before dawn I drove past a ramshackle school where the bomb-wounded lay groaning on bare tables.

In an American army jeep, whose four-wheeled drive was taxed by the drowned trails through the Chindwin valleys and bogs and nearly perpendicular mule routes over the Chin hills, I chauffered a wounded British captain into Assam, thence by miserable bullock cart roads to Bengal and Calcutta.

Thirteen hundred miles, thirteen days.

Warned that Japanese patrol might already have cut my cross-country track, my newsman's luck kept me from driving southwestward to Monywa to try to catch an upstream Chindwin river steamer. Japanese patrols would have beaten me there; besides the steamers quickly suspended service.

I struck northwestward on a new trail hacked out of the jungle and followed the river beds miles on end, thankful that the monsoon had not yet filled them with more than a few inches of water.

In the desert and jungle patchwork you are tortured one day by thirst, nearly drowned by torrential rain the next.

Now with the Calcutta streetcar banging prosaically past my hotel room in the city, a city that has never heard the ear-splitting crash of enemy bombs or seen women and children smashed to pulp by high explosives, I feel in an unreal world.

This is a world I had almost forgotten during my months of covering the Burma invasion.

It is a cushy, well-fed, comfortably bedded world.

Yet at this moment, back in Burma, the dwindling columns of dirt-caked troops are fighting for their lives—fighting on as they have been doing ever since early January when they were given the impossible task of defending Burma's wide-open eastern frontier against an enemy more numerous, more skilled in jungle warfare, continually reinforced by land, air and sea.

Fresh forces of the Indian army are manning their own frontier. They appeared calm, determined, mentally ready for the first clash with the enemy.

In reply to an inquiry from them as I passed, I said:

"Get your men off the roads, out into the jungles, accustom them to living there, forget you ever had an army truck, camouflage your hideouts, study ways to ambush the other fellow, demand tommyguns, and mortars from ordnance. Rifles and machineguns are all right but tommyguns and mortars are much better and the Jap has plenty."

Students Turn Out War Supplies In the Classroom

WOBURN—(INS)—Woburn High school students are pitching in on the war effort by saving the town and Mayor William E. Kane money which would ordinarily have to be spent for splints, stretchers, clubs for the auxiliary police and other important wartime equipment.

War supplies are being made by students, nearly 300 of them, who are turning out a factory-like supply of equipment in the woodworking, printing and domestic arts courses at the school.

Recently, 100 night sticks were turned over to the auxiliary police, produced on three lathes that ran on an assembly line, with each student worker completing his part of the shaping then passing the stick along for the next step.

Boys in the woodworking classes got together with girls taking domestic arts courses and made six new stretchers. The entire production was based on blue prints provided by the State Committee on Public Safety. Available for immediate use are 150 splints, for broken arms and legs, and two movable gun racks.

Bans Fuel Oil for New Heaters June 15

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT M'KENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

The sinking of three British destroyers in the Mediterranean is a grim reminder that air power is going to play a major part—far greater than ever before—during this crucial year of the World war.

Looking back on the terrible blood-baths which have been poured from the skies upon many peoples since the beginning of the conflict, it is difficult to believe that anything worse can be in store. Yet the indications are that we have seen little as compared with what is to come.

The new bombers now racing to the various fronts from both Allied and Axis factories are the latest that science can produce. They can fly farther and faster, carry greater loads of bombs and shoot more accurately.

Britain's RAF and Uncle Sam's air navy already have shown enough to convince the world that they have the best there is.

The Nazi air fleet, however, has been playing possum through much of the winter. Without question this long period has been utilized by the fuehrer in overhauling his Luftwaffe and strengthening it immeasurably with new and better machines from his factories.

We have had glimpses of a mountainous Nazi air strength. We saw it in the deaths of those destroyers, and were reminded of it again yesterday when the Nazis triumphantly advertised in connection with their offensive on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea:

"Hell has been let loose over the bolshevist positions in the Kerch peninsula."

Hell was indeed let loose, and today the Nazis claim victory with annihilation of the Red force. On the other hand, Moscow reports no substantial change in the situation. We must await more news for clarification of the position.

The German air armada for the most part still lies idle, but that won't be for long. Hitler seems to be getting ready to strike a mighty blow somewhere.

In view of circumstances Premier Churchill has justification for his statement that "airborne invasion becomes more and more a possibility."

Such a Nazi invasion of the British Isles might be attempted if the Muscovites are able to hold the Nazis. Still, it likely would represent an act of desperation and would be employed by Hitler only as a last resort.

What seems more likely is that the Nazi leader will stage a huge air offensive in the Mediterranean theater in conjunction with his effort to smash the Russian line and break into the Caucasus. If he can't drive the Reds he may try to reach the Middle East in a combined air and sea operation, by-passing Turkey and striking through Syria.

Whatever form Hitler's strategy may take, it will involve a struggle for supremacy of the Mediterranean, upon which much of Britain's might now depends. That will mean an effort on his part to knock out British naval strength from the air.

When all of Hitler's warplanes finally take to the skies we shall see some mighty and far-reaching battles, for then the Royal Air Force and the growing American air fleet in Europe and the middle east will come into action against the Nazis. This summer should produce the greatest air activity of history.

CHILD BRIDE, FATHER HELD FOR SLAYING

Girl, 14, Admits She Killed Husband, 35; Parent Hides Pistol.

(By United Press)

MORRISTOWN, Tenn.—Fourteen year old Mattie Pearl Morgan and her father were being arraigned today on a charge of murdering Mattie Pearl's husband, Daymon W. Manning, 35.

There was a great deal about the strange tragedy which had overtaken the mountain family, that authorities didn't know. They did know, however, that Manning was shot in the Morgan home last Saturday and accused his child bride before he died.

Mattie Pearl said, yes, she shot him but she wouldn't say more. She talked to her father just before she fired the shot and he disposed of the pistol later. Therefore, he was charged as an accessory.

She and her father were brought down out of the hills yesterday and put in the county jail here. Manning was a house painter, who according to his neighbors in the community of Lowland school, five miles from here, worked "pretty regular." He married Mattie Pearl three months ago.

All seemed well, until last week, when there was a quarrel of an unknown nature.

Mattie Pearl and her husband went to her parents' home Friday night.

The rest of the story was told by Manning in his dying moments. At breakfast Saturday morning, his bride and her mother refused to eat. Morgan and Manning ate heartily and while they ate Mattie Pearl went to her room.

After breakfast, her father went to her room. A few minutes later, she walked out, a pistol in hand, and shot her husband. Then Morgan threw the pistol in a well. Mattie Pearl was said to have told the neighbors that Manning had threatened her.

Mattie Pearl looked very trim in a faded gingham dress when she arrived at the jail house and was ushered into a cell. There, she "just sat and stared."

Friendly House boys and girls are taking to the countryside for outings these spring days. The beginners' cooking class instructed by Miss Gladys Kerr, will go to Hidden Hollow camp Saturday for the first picnic of the season. Monday the Nature club plans to study spring flowers on an after-school trip to the home of a volunteer instructor, Mrs. H. M. Spandeau, on the German Church road.

First pupils in Richland county to start their summer vacation will be 120 boys and girls in Mifflin township who will put away their books Friday. The township's four grade schools will be dismissed earlier than the others because they have had less vacation time during the year and have completed their required time in classes, County Supt. Boyd Robinson said. Most of the other county grade and high schools will close next week.

Because he broke his parole on good behaviour last night a Mansfield man was returned to the county jail to serve the last three days before his induction into the army. He was called into municipal court today to answer to charges of assault and battery preferred by his wife, after being arrested last night. The potential "inductee" had been at liberty since May 1, when he had a 60-day jail sentence on a similar charge suspended on good behaviour. And if he doesn't pass the army examination he will be returned here to serve the balance of the time.

Mansfield police officers paid a hurried call to North Mulberry street bridge last night in response to a call that a man had fallen off the bridge and was presumably dead. The victim was discovered lying in the creek bed but needing nothing more than a night's sleep to sober him up. He was taken to the police station and this morning heard the judge say, "Five dollars and costs."

WPB ORDER TO HIT OHIO, 14 OTHER STATES

Aimed at Installation of More Equipment; East's Gas Delivery Cut.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — As eastern motorists continued to register for gasoline ration cards, the war production board today formally prohibited deliveries of fuel oil for use in heating equipment installed after June 15 in 15 midwestern states, including Ohio.

The order was aimed at discouraging the installation of new oil-burning heating equipment which requires critical materials essential to the war effort, WPB officials said. The restriction does not apply to new stoves for domestic cooking.

Besides Ohio, states affected by the prohibition order are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

Meanwhile the board formally ordered deliveries to filling stations reduced to 50 per cent of normal along the Atlantic seaboard, effective Friday, and in Oregon and Washington, on June 1.

It was the first announcement that the two western states would face such a severe curtailment in gasoline deliveries, although they previously have been subject to the one-third reduction which also applied from Maine to Florida and in the District of Columbia. The WPB planned to cut deliveries Saturday but moved it up a day instead. Other developments were:

1. Fuel oil deliveries also were ordered slashed by 50 per cent, effective Friday, in the 17 Atlantic states, Oregon and Washington, and the District of Columbia.

2. The WPB formally accepted Oil Coordinator Ickes' recommendations for exemption of 93 counties in New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia from the gasoline ration area.

3. Canada announced that the gasoline ration for United States tourist would be reduced from 20 five-gallon units to four units, beginning Friday.

4. After many queries about congressmen being issued cards permitted unlimited purchases of gas, the OPA put out a statement explaining that "a government worker or a congressman cannot obtain an 'X' card for a car which he uses for driving to work and for pleasure purposes."

Meanwhile, some 8,500,000 motorists along the eastern seaboard will start using ration cards Friday.

Canadian officials said the drastic reduction in the amount of gasoline available for United States tourists was "unavoidable in view of the seriousness of the shortage in Canada."

FORGING LINK

Export Airlines to Establish New Connections With Ulster.

LONDON —(INS)— A new air link between the United States and Northern Ireland soon will be established by the American Export Airlines, F. L. Brown, European director for the firm, announced today.

"Proving flights" for the new route probably will be held during the next two weeks, Brown said.

NEED PERMITS

Fishermen Going to Lake Must Get Identification Cards.

Fishermen in the Mansfield area and elsewhere who plan to use boats this summer on Lake Erie must apply for water-front identification cards from May 15 through May 18 at the U. S. Coast guard headquarters in the Sandusky postoffice, it was announced today.

Applications will be received from 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. daily from Friday through Monday. Before going before the coast guard, the applicant must first have obtained an application blank signed by an "endorsing officer." There are five in Sandusky, including Fire Chief Wilson McLaughlin, C. H. Richardson, 426 Huron avenue; Worthy Brown, foot of Columbus avenue; George Micheaux, Gulf Refining bulk station, and Ralph Crammond.

The Coast Guard requires the applicant to show his birth certificate, or other proof of citizenship, and his social security card. Only one fisherman in a boat is required to have a card of identification, but there must be at least one in every fishing boat.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. J. E. LA DOW

Brief Illness Ends in Death of Mansfield Church Worker; Funeral Thursday.

Mrs. Jesse E. LaDow, 71, a life-long resident of Mansfield and active figure in church and women's affairs, died Tuesday at her home, 750 Woodhill road, following a short illness.

Before her marriage, Mrs. LaDow was Nora Crider, daughter of John and Hannah Gongwer Crider, early residents of this vicinity. Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Harrison Lowery, a sister, Mrs. Jane Stroup of Mansfield, and a brother, Joe C. Crider of Harpster, O. Two grandsons, Demming and Harrison Lowery, and two great-grandchildren, also survive.

Mrs. LaDow was a member of the First Congregational church, past president of the Guild, and an active worker in various other departments of the church. She was an honorary member of the Mansfield Garden club, and was a member of the Women's Federation.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home Thursday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Peter Young, pastor of the First Congregational church, officiating. Burial will be in Plymouth cemetery. Friends are asked to omit flowers.

DEATH CLAIMS A. L. HOFFMAN

Mansfield Resident, 78 Years, Dies At General Hospital.

Alvin L. Hoffman, 80, who resided at T. and A. hotel, died this morning at General hospital after an illness of several months.

Born in Gettysburg, Pa., March 30, 1862, he came to Mansfield when two years of age. He was a former blacksmith and worked in and near Mansfield for many years.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Charles Richards and Mrs. Elverda Kling of Mansfield, Mrs. Frank Shaffer of Massillon, and Mrs. Helen Wright of Elcojon, Cal.; two sons, Earl C. and Rollie Hoffman of Mansfield; and one brother, Harry Hoffman of Ashland.

The body was removed to the Wappner Funeral home where services will be conducted at 1 p. m., Friday. Rev. S. R. Parrett, pastor of the Gospel Center, will officiate. Burial will be in Franklin cemetery.

LESSON FRIDAY

Beekeepers To Attend Third In Series Of Lessons.

The Richland County Beekeepers' association will offer the third in a series of free lessons in bee keeping at 7:30 p. m. Friday at the courthouse.

Also on the program will be educational motion pictures and a discussion of bee keeping methods.

Philip Stier, president of the association, said the June lesson and meeting will be outdoors at an apiary in the county where the pupils can work with live bees.

DATES To Remember

May 17—"I Am an American" day.

APPLESEED HIGH PREPARES FOR ANNUAL PAN-AMERICAN EXHIBIT

The annual Pan-American exhibition sponsored by the Pan-American club of Johnny Appleseed Junior high school will open Thursday at 10 a. m., in the school gymnasium.

Closing at 4 p. m. Friday, this year's Latin American exhibit will be open to the public for the first time.

In connection with the exhibit a contest will be held in which pupils displaying the best maps and scrapbooks will be awarded prizes of War Savings stamps and South American poster stamp albums.

The exhibit will be opened by a school radio program feautring a short talk by Club President Anne Tracy, and a skit in which Margery Huber and Jane Nusbaum take an imaginary trip to South America.

John Cornell, faculty advisor of the club, is general program chairman, assisted by Miss Edith Beck in charge of the map contest; and Miss Ellena Percy, gymnasium arrangements. The contest judges are Miss Helen Lorow, Mrs. Dan Haber and Principal G. W. Harmony.

In addition to members of the club the general public is invited to exhibit any articles of interest from Mexico, Central or South America.

Committees for the exhibit are as follows: reception committee Anne Tracy, Tom Bloor, Connor Faye and James Wolf; guides—Peggy Foltz, Claudia Marks, Margery Tuber, Ann Parsons, Jackie Fonkalsrud, Barbara Bailey, Mary Cole, Judy McKenzie, Margery Van Allen, Mary Ann Bahl and Julia Colby; commercial committee—Carol Goettinger, Birdie Kevey, Cara Lou Casto, Verna Beth Graham, Laura May Ferrer; arrangements—Miss Ellena Percy, Bud Crum, William Ingram, Jo Ann Beelman, Sheldon Miller, Margery Eckstein, Robert Gilbert, William Werner, Norma Blackstone, Pauline Bauer, Joceylyn Hall, John Glasscock and James Day; guards are those Girl Scouts; Mary Betty Heiber, Portia Schiller, Darlene Secrist, Jean Curry, Marcella Grau, Patty Lybarger, Mary Katherine Rust, Wyoma Connor, and Joan Senert.

WORKERS AIDED

One-Time Shelby Man Leaves Company to Employes.

The Brown Brothers Coal company, of Cleveland, a $160,000 business, today became the property of its faithful employes with the death of William A. Brown, 78, president of the firm.

Brown, who lived in Shelby years ago and who died yesterday, was guided by the belief that he owed much to the employes who helped him build the company. When it was incorporated in 1923, all employes were made stockholders. In 1929, Brown announced that his will would leave all of his stock, the majority holding, "to help those employes who had helped him."

In 46 years, he had discharged only two employes. He prided himself on his ability to select men.

DRIVER INJURED

ASHLAND—Barbara Flowers, 20, of Findlay received cuts and bruises when the automobile which she was driving turned over on U. S. route 224, east of Ruggles yesterday. State highway patrolmen said she lost control of the car when it skidded on the wet pavement.

DEATH REPORTED

SHELBY—Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. Mary Miller of Cleveland, formerly Miss Mary Whalen of Shelby. Funeral services will be held Saturday morning in Cleveland.

CAMP SET

Girl Scouts Select Site at Averill Woods.

Mansfield Girl Scouts will hold their annual day camp at Averill's woods, one mile beyond the Richland county fairground, this year and program plans for the six-day period will be completed this week.

Camp will be held two days a week for three consecutive weeks starting Tuesday, July 7, Miss Eleanor Bond, executive secretary, said today, and activities are being set up for Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Scout Council members will visit all troops next week to explain camp procedure. Proximity of the camp to the city makes it possible for the Scouts to either hike to the site after they reach the end of the bus line or use their bicycles for transportation from town.

DEATH TAKES HARVEY A. LONG

Resident of Mansfield 21 years Dies at Nephew's Home.

Harvey A. Long, 60, died suddenly yesterday at the home of his nephew, Allen Schuster, on Averill avenue after a brief illness.

He was born March 4, 1882 in Knox county and came to Mansfield 21 years ago. He is survived by one brother, Rollie Long, of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be conducted at 2 p. m., Thursday. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church will officiate. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

SAVE TIRES

Milk Collectors Will Re-route Trucks Under New Plan.

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Elmer F. Kruse, chairman of the Ohio Agricultural War board, revealed today the board had begun a campaign to save a set of tires a day by re-routing milk collecting trucks. He said there are 2,068 trucks in Ohio engaged in picking up milk at farms.

He said the war board planned to work out re-routing on a voluntary basis but to appeal to the office of defense transportation if processors fail to cooperate.

ASKS JOINT RIDES

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ted F. Silvey, secretray-treasurer of the Ohio Congress of Industrial Organizations, appealed to war production workers to form groups for riding in private automobiles to conserve tires and gasoline.

Staggered Work Hours for State Employes Begun

COLUMBUS —(INS)— A program of staggered work hours, designed to ease transportation congestion in the Columbus district, went into effect today for state employes.

"The program," Governor Bricker asserted in announcing the plan, "is in line with that being advocated throughout the state to stagger the hours of industrial, office and store workers to conserve rubber and get the maximum results from available transportation facilities."

Under the plan, six of the major state departments will operate from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.; five will operate from 8:15 a. m. to 4:45 p. m., and other departments, divisions, boards, bureaus and commissions, except the bureau of unemployment compensation, will operate from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The departments beginning work at 8 a. m., are the departments of agriculture, commerce, education, finance, health, and highways. Those beginning at 8:15 a. m., are the departments of industrial relations, public welfare and liquor control, and the industrial and public utilities commissions.

The unemployment compensation bureau will operate its entire central office, except benefits department, from 8:15 a. m., to 4:15 p. m. The benefits department will operate from 8 a. m., to 4 p. m.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Add sports which Mansfield will do without this summer:

American Legion junior baseball.

This is one sport which was NOT dropped because of lack of interest here. The American Legion post has been well pleased with the record its boys have compiled in recent years.

"But," explains Commander Sam Fox, "we had nobody to play with. The nearest game we could get was Elyria. So we decided to suspend operations for the duration."

American Legion plans for an amateur fight show this month also have been discarded, and again NOT for lack of interest.

"The Friendly House staff is busy on preparations for summer camp, and could not give the time which work on a fight show would require," Fox said.

"It's too bad, because I believe the town was getting interested in amateur boxing again."

Down at Mt. Vernon the other night they had a high school championship boxing tournament. And among the contestants were several boys who did very well in the Mansfield JAC tourney—Red Beckholt, Dick Kerin, and Lloyd Morton.

* * *

They've completed tabulation of scores in the Northern Ohio women's bowling tournament at Tiffin, and Mansfield's Lois Williams wins the all-events crown with her 1801 total.

The Williams-Kellogg team finished fifth in doubles with 1158, and Kate Cheney and Hazel Hilborn were sixth with 1157.

And Colony alleys were tied with a Tiffin team for seventh with 2755.

I am very happy to record the Williams championship. Because it happens I wrote a column one day last winter about the way she and Juanita Miles missed never a day on the alleys in an effort to improve their game.

And the column appeared on her birthday, and I didn't know at the time that it was her birthday. Just a happy coincidence that proved a forerunner to the Tiffin title.

But in spite of all the bowling she did on the Colony lanes during the winter, Lois made a habit of turning in her best scores in tournaments out of town. The mark of a good competitor.

Scully Cleland, the old Texas league gopher hole ball-batter-inner, almost let himself get shanghaied in a canoe Monday.

Scully took his nephew, Dick Kessell, and another Kenyon college freshman to the state park near Loudonville, to start them off on a canoe trip down the Mohican to Zanesville, and then down the Walhonding to Marietta and the Ohio river.

"I thought they were foolish for taking such a trip at this time of year," says Scully, "but I got in the canoe and rode several miles down the river, and dog-gone, if I didn't hate to get out."

(Mrs. Cleland was waiting in the car, to see that he did get out.)

CHARLESTON AND SPRINGFIELD TIED

ZANESVILLE — (AP) — The Springfield Cardinals were deadlocked with Charleston today for the Mid-Atlantic league leadership after racking up a 9 to 3 win over Zanesville last night while the West Virginians and Erie were idle.

* * *

Springfield drove Pitcher Joe Butsko from the box in the fifth inning, then pounded out three more runs off Charlie Shanklin and Jim Green in the last three frames.

* * *

Larry Bridges pitched three-hit ball as Canton blanked Dayton 2 to 0. Two of Dayton's safeties were infield scratches. The Terriers bunched four of their five hits off Ted Coffee with an error in the sixth for their two runs.

COACH ENLISTS

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(INS)—William P. Mahoney sent his charges through a stiff workout today in preparation for his last track meet as Notre Dame coach before reporting for training in the naval reserve as an ensign. Mahoney, a product of Phoenix, Ariz., will direct the team against the army at West Point, Saturday, and will report Monday at Annapolis for training.

Thompson Turns In 1-Hitter

Pinch Double Spoils Hall of Fame Bid.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

GENE (JUNIOR) THOMPSON is a young fellow who always seems to have been bordering on greatness as a pitcher.

Every year since he joined the Cincinnati Reds in 1939 he has been considered a potential 20-game winner although his actual victories for three seasons have been 13, 16 and 6.

The big, rangy righthander nearly entered the Hall of Fame in Brooklyn yesterday when he came within one blow of the no-hit game all hurlers dream about.

The only hit off Thompson was a pinch double in the sixth inning by his former teammate, Lew Riggs, one of the best pinch-hitters in the game today, and it set up a run that cheated Thompson of even a shut out. The Reds won 5-1.

This was Thompson's second victory without defeat this spring and it heralded the news that Manager Bill McKechnie now has his pitching staff ready to terrorize the rest of the National league.

The record for the last four games shows John Vander Meer pitching a six-hitter, Ray Starr nine hits, Bucky Walters four hits and now Thompson with one hit. In the last three games Cincinnati's opponents have made only one run.

Cincinnati's triumph bunched all four clubs in the first division within four games, but Brooklyn's 2½ game margin over the second place Pittsburgh Pirates was not harmed because the New York Giants bowled over the Buccaneers 7 to 3.

* * *

The Giants sprung a triple play, the first of the year in the majors, and rallied twice for four and three runs to help Lefty Cliff Melton achieve his fourth triumph. The triple-killing came in the seventh inning. With Pittsburgh runners on first and second, Rookie Connie Ryan caught a liner by Frank Gustine and tossed to Bill Jurges, who stepped on second and then tagged Pete Coscarart charging down from first.

* * *

The Chicago Cubs managed to stop the rush of the Boston Braves, but only by a narrow 9-8 margin. Likewise the Philadelphia Phils cooled off the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 behind the six-hit hurling of Frank Hoerst.

* * *

All the games in the American league were postponed except the Philadelphia Athletics' struggle at St. Louis and Rookie Jack Wallaesa won this for the A's 5-4 with a three-run homer in the eighth inning.

Bonham Starts Against Indians

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The New York Yankees made it tough for the Redskin hitters today by sending big Ernie Bonham to the mound.

The world champions, weathered out of their initial appearance here yesterday, have played the Tribe only once. Ernie Bonham, who possesses the enviable record of four victories without a defeat, hurled that game and handed the Tribe a 3 to 0 whipping.

* * *

Boudreau called on Chubby Dean to make his first start of the season against the Yanks today. When employed by Connie Mack at Philadelphia, Lefty Dean was the nemesis of the New Yorkers throughout the spring.

Underclassmen Play Tight Game

Playing without seniors in the lineup, Union and Ontario high school baseball teams tangled in a near perfect game last evening at Union, with the home team eking out a 1-0 decision.

* * *

Bill Spring, first man up for Union in the first inning, punched a single to right field, and later scored on Kuhn's single. That was all, brother.

* * *

Jack Hammett held Ontario to two hits, and Elliott gave Union six.

PROBABLY SHOOTS GOOD GAME, TOO

DALLAS, Tex. —(AP)— When Pvt. William Wheat learned that his father, Calvin Wheat, was entered in a Dallas golf tournament he wrote:

"Lots of luck to you. Incidentally, I am entered in the big Japanese open to be played in Tokyo soon. Their rules do not specify any particular clubs so right now I am playing with a neat precision, registered, 155 mm. howitzer driver, which does not hook or slices."

Twilight Track Season Ends

Popular Evening Meets Reach Finale Today.

Last of the popular twilight track meets of the Mansfield high school season will be staged this evening at Stadium field at 7 o'clock when the Tygers meet Ashland.

In spite of the high track standing owned for years by Mansfield, and the unquestioned interest in the Mansfield Relays, crowds at dual meets were hardly large enough to be dignified by the word "crowds," before this spring.

Hoping to attract a few spectators to the meets, Coach Harry Mehock decided to take advantage of the daylight saving under war time and inaugurated his twilight events, first in Ohio as far as can be learned here.

* * *

And the crowds jumped to an average of 300 fans, and to a high mark of 500 for last week's carnival of grade, junior high, and high school track.

With a large share of the Tyger team making the last home appearance of their high school athletic careers this evening, a record attendance should be chalked up.

DIZZY AND SATCHEL HURL IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO—(AP)—Dizzy Dean is coming back to test his old right flipper in a baseball game May 24 at Wrigley field, home of the Chicago Cubs and scene of some of his former triumphs.

Opposing him on the mound will be the Negro hurling wonder, Leroy "Satchel" Paige.

* * *

Dean, now a baseball broadcaster in St. Louis, will lead a team of so-called all-stars against the Kansas City Monarchs, champions of the Negro American league the last three years.

REJECTED GIANT ENLISTS ANYWAY

TULSA, Okla. — (AP) — Rejected by the army because of his size, Ralph "Fats" Harris, 268-pound guard on last fall's University of Oklahoma football team, has joined the navy's foreign construction brigade.

Enlisting with Harris was his 220-pound brother, W. H., a former Tulsa high school grid star.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—A gent from Arcadia, Fla., who modestly admits he's the "smartest man on earth," recently wrote Frank Y. Grayson of the Cincinnati Times-Star offering to sell for a mere $100 psychological instructions that would insure the pennant for the Reds. . . . He even offered to refund the dough if Cincinnati isn't two games ahead by Sept. 10. . . . Only trouble is he's a year too late; last season plenty of scribes who picked the Reds would have been willing to contribute a few bucks. . . . After all those months of searching, Yale didn't go far for its new football coach. Sioux City, home of Howie Odell, is only about a good punt from Cherokee, Ia., Spike Nelson's home town.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE.

The Washington Redskins have announced they will hold a preseason football practice next fall at San Diego, Calif.—which sounds like the height of something. . . . That handsome bust of Lou Gehrig in the Yankee stadium trophy room is the work of William Westcott, who played tackle for V.M.I. about 20 years ago. . . . Joe Louis has been transferred from Camp Upton to the army morale division office in New York City, so it doesn't appear likely he will be shifted again before he gets a chance at a summer fight. . . . The obstacle courses at Missouri and Georgia Tech made such a hit with Frank Thomas, Alabama grid coach, that he is rigging up one of his own and wants the Southeastern conference colleges to hold an obstacle course tournament. . . . The guys who negotiate the obstacles most successfully can become football coaches themselves.

GAME POSTPONED

SHELBY — Because of weather, the Shelby-Galion high school baseball game scheduled here Tuesday was postponed until May 21. In the first game played between the two schools, Galion won 6 to 2.

Blues Treated To Wide Edge

Break Habit of Playing to One-Run Decisions.

(By Associated Press)

The Kansas City Blues, who are setting something of a record for participating in games decided by one run, were forced to depart from their economical ways to frustrate Milwaukee's bid for the American Association lead.

* * *

After playing in seven consecutive games in which the margin of difference was one run (and winning six of them), the Blues last night defeated Milwaukee in their first meeting of the year, 11 to 7.

It was only the seventh time in 21 contests that Kansas City has been a party to such waste. Ten of its 16 victories have been by a single score, four of the five setbacks by the same margin.

In yesterday's only other game—weather prevented the Toledo-Columbus and Minneapolis-St. Paul contests—Indianapolis whipped Louisville, 5 to 1, in its first night game of 1942. Ray Poat scattered nine Louisville hits and struck out eight men.

CALL CALIFORNIA FOOTBALL CENTER

SEATTLE—(AP)—Where is the collegiate football capital?

The state of California!

American Football Statistical Bureau figures show that there were 53 football playing colleges in the Golden State last year. Pennsylvania was second with 50, and Texas third with 46.

Three states are bunched at the bottom of the list. Delaware, Nevada and Wyoming have one football-playing school apiece.

Hastening to retrieve the balls, Wagner found two of them on Policeman Homer Beattie's front lawn. From the porch Mrs. Beattie called:

"Here's the other one. It bounced into the living room when I opened the door."

Budweisers of Chicago Win

Take ABC Team Title, Tourney Ends Today.

COLUMBUS—(AP)— The mighty Budweiser quintet of Chicago, with a 3131 score, captured the juiciest plum—$1,500 in cash—in the 42nd American Bowling Congress tournament, which passes into history today.

The five-man event closed last night in the 72-day classic, the richest in ABC annals. Some 28,000 keglers competed for $253,930 in prize money, exceeding by approximately $14,000 the previous top purse. Champions and title winning team members also receive gold medals.

Today's doubles and singles wind up the ten-pin merry-go-round at the state fairgrounds Coliseum.

Presently John Stanley of Cleveland paces the singles with 756, Edward Nowicki and George Baier of Milwaukee the doubles with 1377 and Tod Moskal of Saginaw, Mich., the all-events with 1973.

Another Budweiser entry, from St. Louis, finished second in the team event, its 3111 score worth $1,200. Schlitz of Milwaukee compiled a third-place 3105 for $1,000. Waldorf Red Brand Beer of Cleveland was fourth with 3091, good for $900, and Chicago's Joseph L. Gill Insurance Co., fifth in a 3077 count, won $850.

Tournament officials reported the meet entered the profit column 12 days ago. Paid attendance totaled about 50,000.

Tire Shortage Hits Athletics

Townsend Predicts Restricted Program.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The lack of tires is going to keep most of Ohio's scholastic athletic teams at home for the duration, H. R. Townsend, Ohio high school athletic commissioner, opined today.

The office of price administration reiterated in Washington that it did not intend to relax its ban on new tires for school buses transporting athletic teams and Townsend observed the action would "cut deep into athletic competition."

"It doesn't look as though there will be much night football and numerous county schools are talking about discontinuing basketball," Townsend said.

Despite the outlook, the commissioner asserted that Ohio school officials were preparing to co-operate in curtailing competition.

"They realize there aren't going to be new tires for school buses transporting athletic teams to other cities for contests and generally will revise their programs," he said.

Buses can use old tires for transporting teams, Townsend said, and no ban has been placed on private cars. Such expedients were regarded as uncertain when "tires begin to wear thin," however.

Townsend said about 26,000 Ohio youths participated in basketball and that next to the cage sport and football, track and baseball were the most popular. In all, Ohio schools engage in nine sports.

HALE AMERICA TOURNEY GROWS

NEW YORK—(AP)—Enough entries for the Hale America National Open golf tournament have been received to boost the total to 446 and Joe Dey, executive secretary of the USGA, predicted there would be 1,000 contestants by the time the books close tomorrow.

Lawson Little's entry was among the latest received.

Murder On the Avenue

By Carolyn Wells

(Copyright, 1942)

CHAPTER VIII

'That's the answer. Last time I seen her alive, she was in that men's coat room, with — some handsome young feller."

"Describe him."

"Oh, I can't do that! I never look at the men"

"What were Mrs McCleod and the young man doing?"

"Nothin' She was kinda showin' him her bracelets, on her arm. She had on three or four beautiful ones She was lyin' on the couch, chaze they call it,— not lyin' out, you know, just sorta leanin' back in the corner, in the muddle of lace pillows"

"Now, Miss Briggs, please try to remember something about the looks of that man"

"Why, I never so much as gave him a glance I was just thrilled with lookin' at Mrs McCleod, as she lay back there, lookin' most special at the way her skirt hung. Sorta billowy and yet every seam in place; white it was, all white, with some touches of goldy stuff here and there."

Miss Briggs seemed to go into a dream about the gold touches, and Raynor wondered whether he could get any real help from her

"That room has a door at each end, hasn't it?" Raynor asked Netta Briggs.

"Oh, yes Mr McCleod goes through it when he's going up to see his father It's a short cut"

"Well, then, Miss Briggs, you have nothing more to tell me?"

'Not about Mrs McCleod, no. But I can tell you something about Linda, sir"

Being a good detective, Raynor was not above catching at any straw.

"You mean Linda had a motive?"

"Well, rather! You see, she's down in Mrs. McCleod's will for ten thousand dollars"

"Are you sure? That's a lot of money"

"She told me about it herself."

"Very well. But don't tell anyone else, Netta. You might get yourself in trouble if you do Now, look here, girl. Do you think you would recognize that man, who was in the room with Mrs McCleod, if you saw him again?"

Netta looked doubtful. "I don't think I would"

'Have a try at it, anyway. After that you can go home"

"I don't want to go home, I want to stay here"

'You find our man for me, and perhaps I can arrange for you to stay here a bit longer Now you go into the drawing-room or library or what not, and see if you can recognize the man we're speaking of Don't look hard at anybody. Have an air as if you were on some errand Look for a book on a library shelf"

"Yes sir"

"Make a stab at it If Foo Chow orders you out, tell him you're there by my directions"

* * *

Miss Briggs departed and soon found a few men at the bar, among whom might be her quarry. She was about to leave the room when Foo Chow came in and announced that breakfast was served

Some of the men started for the breakfast room Netta followed them There were small tables and she sat at one alone.

Brand Herrick was speaking

"I think," he said, quietly, "Raynor ought to realize that we men are much put out by this long delay Surely he could arrange matters better I'm going to telephone to my partner, Clarence Bliss, to come here It is important that I see him'

He left the room and went to a hall telephone

"What's in a name?" said Van Dyke Haynes, flippantly. "I didn't know Herrick had a partner. Clarence Bliss! Its very sound visions a pale face, with sandy hair, mild blue eyes and a lack of weight and muscle Probably a thin, piping voice"

"You never can tell," said Henry Markell, one of the older men, and a long-time friend of the older McCleods

"I wonder how Emmy is taking this,' he went on "And old Angus I want to see Hugh before I go away Perhaps I can do something for him."

"His lawyers are Chadwick and Hart," said Herrick, returning just then "I think they have been notified I'd like to help Mr. McCleod, but I feel it would be intrusive to offer."

"If Chadwick is coming, your services won't be needed," Van Dyke observed

"True talk," Brand said, looking at Haynes without a smile.

Netta Briggs finished her coffee and went to Raynor.

'It's no good, Off'cer," she said "If I'd known, I coulda found out who was the guy I saw with the lady, but when I looked at 'em eating their breakfast, there wasn't one of them I'd pick They all looked alike to me"

"You may go now . . . Colby, get Brand Herrick in here, will you?"

Herrick came at once, and sat down

"Don't mind if I drop asleep," he said "I am told I talk in my sleep, so it may do just as well."

Raynor smiled at the big young man.

"You knew Mrs McCleod pretty well, Mr Herrick?"

"I belong to what she was kind enough to call her crowd' I have been invited here often, but I am not enough of an intimate to come informally I have met Mrs McCleod frequently at other places"

"At her friends' houses?"

"Yes; and at clubs or theater parties But I am a busy man, and I don't always have time to frivol"

"I see. Now, will you tell me of the last time you saw Mrs McCleod alive?"

"I can't tell you the hour, but it was late, and I concluded to go home I went up to the men's coat room for my things and she came into the room. The ladies used that room too She said, 'not going, are you?' or something like that, and I said I had a busy day ahead I said good night and left her there That was the last time I saw her"

"But you didn't go home?"

"No, when I got downstairs, some of the crowd made me stay to hear some young fellow doing impersonations I went in the bar, and listened to the performance"

"And then?"

"I was there when Miss Day screamed After that, I was not allowed to leave the house"

"What did you do?"

"Nothing in particular I kept an eye out to be of any service I might, and then I found a few of our crowd together and I sat down with them."

"Mr Herrick, you are a lawyer, you have wisdom and judgment. Toward whom do your suspicions lean? You were here, on the spot, and you may have seen something"

"No, I saw nothing that gave me any hint of which way to look. A lawyer is not a detective, and I have no talent in that line at all. I have the highest respect for Mr McCleod, and I admired his beautiful wife, but I cannot think of anyone in our own social class who would have done it. It seems to me it must have been someone from outside, a real killer or someone who meant evil to Mrs. McCleod for reasons we know nothing of."

"But that doesn't necessarily imply a stranger, or even an outsider. Her assailant may have been one of her own impetuous admirers."

Raynor looked blankly at him and then said:

"You were not in love with her yourself, Mr Herrick?"

"I most certainly was not. I am not a prig, but it is not to my taste to fall in love with a married woman Captain Raynor I assure you that I had no affection for and only a slight interest in Mrs McCleod. I am not a society man"

"Will you tell me what you and Mrs McCleod talked about, when you saw her for the last time, in the coat room?"

"The merest commonplaces Indeed, I remember only that she invited me to stay longer, which was the inevitable thing for a hostess to do. And I explained that it was late, and that I ought to be going!"

'You had no more personal chat than that?"

'No, we were there but a few moments I had no reason or wish to continue the interview, nor, I am sure, did she"

'You are losing your temper, Mr Herrick"

"I am not and you know I am not You hope to make me do so, but I am not disturbed Why are you acting as if you suspected me of this crime when you are doing nothing of the sort?"

'You mean I am not suspecting you?"

"I mean exactly that Why are you pretending that you do suspect me?"

Raynor smiled

While Herrick was still with Raynor, Foo Chow came to the door of the breakfast room and announced, "Mr Bliss"

* * *

Those who looked up were almost startled to see the newcomer Bliss was tall and large and gave the impression of great strength and trained muscles He had what is sometimes called a commanding presence

"Mr. Herrick is not here?" he said to the butler It was Markell who answered

"How are you, Bliss?" he said, cordially "I'm Markell, remember?"

"Oh, yes' A smile replaced his inquisitive frown "Where's Brand?"

"He's being interrogated by the Detective Bureau. And I hope they will finish him off soon, we're all waiting"

"Where is he?"

'Shut up in some private room"

"I'll find him," Bliss turned to go

"They won't let you in," Haynes volunteered. "It's a secret session."

"Then I'll go right in," Bliss nodded to Foo Chow, who made a comprehending bow, and ushered him out.

"Take me to the room where Mr Herrick is," was the order and Foo Chow led the way.

At the closed door he paused, and looked at Bliss

"All right" The determined man opened the door and walked in

"Hello, Clarence," Brand said "Captain Raynor, this is my partner, Mr Bliss."

"Good morning," said Raynor, cordially, for Bliss' manner was disarming "I'm afraid I can't ask you to sit down This is a private interview."

"That's all right I thought maybe I could help. If not, I'll just ask for a minute's talk with Herrick Just tell me, Brand, where you put the leases that belong to the Harmer case"

"They're in the filing cabinet D And see to it, will you, that the Connolly papers are returned today"

"Yes, I'll look after everything As well as I can I'm like a ship without a rudder when you're not there. Let him out as soon as you can, won't you, Captain?"

"It's a serious case, Mr Bliss"

"Indeed, yes"

"What are you holding Herrick for? Just routine questioning?

'So far, yes But I'm hoping he can give me some sidelights or opinions that will help"

"I wonder if you're frank with me. I can't help an impression that you're hoping to prove Brand the criminal"

"I can't discuss that with you, Mr. Bliss And I shall have to ask you to go now."

"I'm going Don't fret and fume about the office, Brand, Miss Ripley and I can run it"

"Better postpone that Creswell matter. I shall have to see to that."

"Yes, I suppose so Turn him loose as soon as you can, Captain Raynor" Bliss left the room "I suppose I can get out of this by afternoon?" Herrick said to Raynor

"I'll do my best. I have to talk with one or two others before I can do anything definite You may go, Mr Herrick, but don't leave this house, until I say so"

Herrick went out with a feeling of depression, all the more troublesome because he felt he hadn't carried off the interview with the detective quite as he had meant to He hadn't told the truth about the time he had last seen Alma alive and he felt sure Raynor suspected that

MILLER MIGHT RUN, AFTER ALL

Cuyahoga Dem Chairman Says If He Thinks He Can Win He'll Try For Governor.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Cuyahoga County Democratic Chairman Ray T Miller returned to Cleveland today with the avowed intention to reconsider his decision to remain out of his party's gubernatorial nomination race

Forty Democratic leaders from all parts of Ohio met in Columbus last night and requested Miller to seek the nomination for governor Miller before attending the meeting, had announced he would not be a candidate

However, after sitting in on the three hour conference, the former Cleveland mayor said he would go home, talk with his organization, canvass the situation over the state and then announce his decision, probably by Friday

"If I think I can win, I'll be a candidate," Miller asserted

The Democratic leaders met under the chairmanship of Albert A. Horstmann, of Dayton, head of the party's state central committee. After the leaders agreed to the "draft Miller" program, they appointed a committee of 10 to contact candidates already announced for governor to try to induce them to withdraw.

The draft Miller motion was made by former Lieut Gov William G Pickrel, of Dayton

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, former State Treasurer Clarence H Knisley, former Congressman John McSweeney, and Attorneys Frank A Dve of Columbus and Charles Hubbell of Cleveland already have announced for the Democratic nomination for governor.

CROP OUTLOOK GOOD IN U. S. BUT UNFAVORABLE IN EUROPE

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — Preliminary crop reports indicated today Dame Nature had joined forces with the American farmer in the all out program of food for victory

Bumper harvests all along the line were forecast with soil and weather conditions just about ideal

On the enemy side of the picture, the outlook in Axis-dominated parts of the world took on a definitely unfavorable tinge

The department of agriculture crop reporting board said the general outlook here was "decidedly good—in fact if the weather were any better, the yield of foodstuffs would be augmented even more" The May 1 government crop report indicated a winter wheat crop of 646 875,000 bushels and a rye harvest of 53,270,000 bushels

The area sown to winter wheat was the smallest except for one year since 1914, the report said, but with the smallest acreage abandonment and highest yield per acre in ten years, the 1942 crop was expected to produce 22,000,000 bushels more than was indicated a month ago and only 24,000,000 bushels less than the huge crop of last year

The yield per acre was estimated at 17 8 bushels and the department said there had been only two years since 1909 in which higher yields were indicated

Broomhall, the British grain authority, reported on the other hand that over much of the European continent winter and spring crops were backward due to a recent cold, dry spell

The department of agriculture added the European dairy situation continued to deteriorate because of the shortage of concentrated feeds, reduced numbers of cattle, shortage of farm labor and large requisitions by the armies of invasion.

But American butter production for the week ended May 7 increased 7 per cent over the previous week and 78 per cent over the same week a year ago Milk production rose more than seasonally, or about 4 per cent above that at the same time a year ago

The number of young chicks on farms was estimated at 16 per cent more than a year ago and the April production of hatchers' chicks was the largest on record, or 20 per cent above the total on April 1, 1941

THEATERS

Musical Comedy.

"The Fleets In," the double-barrelled musical comedy showing at the Ohio continues through Friday with Dorothy Lamour, William Holden, Eddie Bracken and Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra furnishing some first rate entertainment The action centers on Holden's efforts, as a girl-shy gob, to kiss Dorothy Lamour in order to help some of his fellow sailors out of a jam Miss Lamour has other ideas on the subject and result is nothing short of hilarious An array of entertainers including Betty Hutton, America's No 1 jitterburg and Lorraine and Rognan, comedy dance team, feature the picture

Daring Drama.

Set against a magnificent oriental background "The Shanghai Gesture," playing at the Madison, presents Ona Munson, Gene Tierney, Victore Mature and Walter Huston in a production that once made stage history. An ornate gambling casino operated by a youngish woman of unscrupulous principles furnishes the locale of the story and the characters include Victor Mature in the role of an Arab mystic and Ona Munson as the casino proprietor. Gene Tierney plays the beauteous daughter of Walter Huston "Murder in the Big House," with Faye Emerson is the second attraction

3—In Memoriam

MEMORY of my daughter, Mrs Alta M Kelly, died May 13, 1932.
The depth of sorrow I cannot tell
Of loss of one I loved so well,
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we will always keep.
A bitter grief a shock severe
To part with one we loved so dear
God loved her too and thought it best
So took her to eternal rest

STOCKS SHADE TOWARD LOWER PRICE GROUND

A. T. & T. Proves Exception, Chalking Quarter Gain; Power Increases.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks shaded toward lower ground in today's market dealings with most declines narrow.

American Telephone was a firm exception at a gain of ¼ on the initial transaction. On the downside were Santa Fe, Standard Oil (N. J.), U. S. Steel, Phelps Dodge, International Harvester, U. S. Rubber and Texas Co.

Taken as a reflector of the rising volume of war production was the Edison Electric Institute's report showing electric output for the week ended May 9 up more than seasonally at 3,551,126,000 kilowatt It was 1.4 per cent ahead of the previous week and 11.6 per cent above the like period last year.

On this expansion the Associated Press power consumption index rose to 158.8 per cent of the 1929-30 average compared with 157.6 per cent the week before and 143.2 a year ago.

All three youths will receive the awards at the Shelby District Boy Scout court of honor to be held next Tuesday night at the high school.

HOLD-UP ADDED TO CRIME WAVE

street, apparently disappearing into a nearby door, a witness said.

Meanwhile, police continued their search for the burglars who obtained 275 men's suits Monday night at the Brook Quality Apparel shop and Komito's Clothes store. The suits were valued at $7,000 by the store managers.

Police said windows in at least six business places in the northwest and sections of the city were broken last night, but nothing was reported stolen from any of the stores and shops.

Windows were broken at the Zediker Apartments drug store, 90 Blymyer avenue; Page Dairy store, Springmill and Cedar streets; Northside Market, 534 Springmill street; a newspaper agency at Woodland avenue and Springmill street; Blair's grocery on Benton street, and at a Kroger store on North Mulberry street.

Bricks and stones were used to smash the windows and most of the damage was reported early last night, police said. Police Chief T. M. Bell said a special detail of officers will be on the job tonight in the city in an attempt to track down the vandals.

Theft of license plates from an automobile owned by Anderson Torch last night near the Appleman junk yard was believed by police to have had some connection with the series of robberies and the hold-up.

Police were checking reports of recent hold-ups and burglaries in Springfield, Fremont, and Circleville in the belief that the same gang might have been responsible for all of them.

PLANT IDLE IN 'WORK HOLIDAY'

Humphryes Employes Protest Failure of War Conversion; Company Issues Denial.

Conciliation service of the Department of Labor, Simpson said.

The union charged that nearly 300 of the company's approximately 500 employes have been furloughed in recent months because of the alleged failure to convert to war production.

In a statement to The News-Journal, Simpson said:

"The employes, in taking this action, are not only considering their welfare, but primarily are interested in producing and building essential war materials. For the past several months, the union negotiating committee has recommended conversion to the company."

In their reply to the union charges, Humphryes officials said:

"On Saturday, May 9, the company met with W. W. Powell, conciliator of the U. S. Department of Labor and the representatives of Local 756. At this meeting, the contract under which the company has been operating since April 8 of last year was extended, with slight modification, by mutual consent to June 19. This is the effective date of War Production Order M-126 which eliminates the use of metals by all enameled iron ware manufacturers in the country.

"The company has been entirely engaged in the manufacture of enameled iron plumbing fixtures for defense housing. Each department of the government contacted, considered this work highly essential to the war program. This permits the use of the maximum number of employes in the work in which they are experienced.

"In addition, the company has been making every effort to find products that would be adaptable to the plant and in the making of which the men would be able to use their knowledge and skill but up to date, no definite articles have been presented which are suitable for manufacture."
